Here are firemen and police vainly attempting to revive 14-year-old Marjorie Horgan, struck by lightning as she was bathing in Silver Lake, Wilmington. As the inhalator crew endeavors to get the little victim to breathing again, a priest (with book, just behind the artificial respiration apparatus) reads the last rites of the church. Rescuers at first believed the child only suffering from near-drowning. Her home was in Reynolds road, Chelsea.

LIGHTNING KILLS MAN IN WESTBORO

4 DIE, 5 HURT IN FLORIDA AIR CRASH

Daytona Beach, Fla., Aug. 10 (AP)—A 14-passenger Eastern Airlines plane crashed into a power line near the airport early today, killing four persons and injuring five others.

Killed in the crash were:

Captain Stuart Dietz, of Baltimore, chief pilot.

Robert Reed, co-pilot.

J. F. Philpots, Kingston, Jamaica, passenger.

J. Triana, Mexico City.

Triana had been listed on the passenger records as W. G. Marian of Mexico City, but before he died in a hospital here identified himself as Triana, an attendant said.

THE INJURED

E. W. Philpots, son of J. F., not seriously injured.

H. M. Hamilton, Detroit.

F. M. Thompson, Greenville, S. C.

C. W. Dunlap, Chicago.

Bryan Merrill, steward, not seriously injured.

The big Douglas airliner, en route from Chicago to Miami, struck the power line pole at 5:40 a. m. eastern daylight time, shortly after it went aloft after a scheduled stop here. It was Eastern Airline's first fatal accident.

LINE STRUNG AT NIGHT

Dietz was killed instantly—crushed in the wreckage. Co-pilot Reed, Philpots and Trnana died at a hospital.

Hospital attaches said all the in-

'Sea Serpent' Prints Found at Nantucket

Nantucket, Aug. 10—More excitement stirred today on this ancient isle when Gil Mauler and Ed Crockett, local businessmen, discovered prints apparently from huge, webbed feet, on the shore while fishing at Madaket Beach.

Discovery of the strange prints, about 60 inches long by 45 wide, followed a report Saturday, by Captain William Manville, that he sighted a sea serpent while bluefishing off the island.

Inquiries of zoo and aquarium curators, as well as other naturalists, were being made today by the excited islanders in attempting to solve the mystery of the sea.

It was a little more than 116 years ago that the Nantucket sea serpent—or an ancestor—was first sighted, and only 104 years since the sloop Fame made a special voyage with the object of capturing the monster.

Captain Manville declared he was positive what he saw while fishing was an enormous sea serpent. It was about 100 feet long, he said, and had a head like a barrel and red-rimmed, glaring eyes the size of dinner plates.

It was recalled that only last December, the 164-ton Boston trawler Winthrop was reported to have been all but capsized off Quereau Bank, 100 miles east of Sable Island, by a similar whiskered ocean mammoth.

Statements by Captain John Whalen and crew members aboard the trawler were borne out by Lubec fishermen, who said they had sighted the monster four months later, and by shore residents at Lubec, who declared the beast even apparently came ashore and gobbled sheep.

Scientists at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute still scoff, however.

POSSE FINDS LOST GIRL IN MOUNTAINS

Twin Mountains, N. H., Aug. 10—Lost in the woods since she strayed from her home yesterday, Elizabeth Thompson, pretty 22-year-old University of New Hampshire graduate employed in the postoffice here, was found weak and exhausted about a mile from town today.

A posse under the direction of Sheriff Lester Moses of Lancaster found the attractive young girl, apparently in a daze, about a half-mile from the main highway after searching parties of more than 50 persons had scoured the mountains near here all day.

"I went for a walk after work yesterday," she told Sheriff Moses. "I walked about a mile up the main highway.

"CAN'T REMEMBER"

"Then I must have decided to walk off into the woods.

She was taken to a house at the edge of the village and treated by a physician.

The girl had spent the night alone in the hills, without eating since yesterday noon.

Among the searchers who maintained a constant vigil all day today, scouring the remote mountain defiles and checking all possible places where she might have gone, were her two sister, Anna, 20, and Alice 21, University of New Hampshire graduates of the class of 1936.

GIRL EXHAUSTED

Miss Thompson was eventually tracked to the point in the woods where she had fallen exhausted by a mountain guide who followed her footsteps.

On the return trip home the girl said little, according to Sheriff Moses.

She had to be carried from the spot where she spent the night in the woods to the home on the highway, where she was allowed to rest.

Authorities and members of her family at first feared that she might have been the victim of an abduction plot.

DOUBT NAMING OF R. I. KILLER

Providence, Aug. 10—Coroner Conrad K. Strauss' claim that the slayer of Dr. George W. Webster would be named in a week was hit by police today as "just talk."

Deputy Superintendent James J. Cusick, who has directed the police probe of the mysterious murder from the beginning, was obviously annoyed at the coroner's statement, and declared:

"Why, the police department has had a man at that inquest every day. Do you think that if the man who killed Dr. Webster were known we would fail to have him under arrest?

"I'm afraid that Coroner Strauss is just talking."

Strauss himself refused to discuss the matter any more or to reply to Cusick's charges, as he resumed his inquest today.

So far, approximately 20 persons have been questioned. One of the most important witnesses yet to be called is the slain obstetrician's widow, Mrs. Kathryn Webster.

Strauss first assured newspapermen that he has, after following

Quins Ill, Irritable, Must Stay Secluded

Callander Ont., Aug. 10 (Canadian Press)—The Dionne quintuplets famed for their coltish high spirits, were described today by their physician, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, as "irritable and nervous."

They are indisposed with slight colds—not serious, but sufficiently distressing to keep their pranks and laughter at a minimum.

Dr. Dafoe announced that the quins needed further rest before they could resume their public appearances. Until Friday, he said, they would be in seclusion.

Fresh screening was placed around the grounds in front of the nursery where the quins play to prevent them from being distracted by crowds. Hundreds of tourists continued to mill around the Dafoe hospital, however, hoping to catch a glimpse of the 4-year-old "five-at-a-time" babies.

Emilie, first of the babies to come down with a sniffle, was pronounced back in the pink of health again by Dr. Dafoe, but the physician kept her in seclusion as well.

Elaine, John Now Legally 'Made Up'

Los Angeles, Aug. 10 (AP)—The John Barrymore's reconciliation became legal today with dismissal of the divorce suit Elaine Barrie Barrymore filed last April.

The 21-year-old Brooklyn girl and the 57-year-old actor were married November 8, 1936, and separated last New Year Eve. A few weeks ago they "made up."

SOX, YANKEES RAINED OUT

The opening game of the crucial American League series between the second place Red Sox and the pace setting Yankees, scheduled for Fenway Park this afternoon, was called off because of rain.

With a double-header already scheduled for tomorrow, the Red Sox announced that today's game would be played as part of another double-header, Thursday.

7-10 YEARS FOR KILGALLON

John H. Kilgallon, 42, of Warren avenue, South End, indicted in the $225,000 Kennedy jewelry robbery at Southboro, was sentenced today in Plymouth superior court to seven to 10 years in State Prison for carrying guns.

Possessing a long police and jail record, dating back to 1902, Kilgallon was captured July 31 at a house in Harvard street, Mattapan, where he and a companion allegedly had gone for a "payoff" in connection with a $10,000 Middleboro leather robbery.

His companion, James Eunson, 35, of Roxbury, escaped in a hail of police bullets, but was captured several days later.

Kennedy Girl, 13, Goes Under Knife

Patricia Kennedy, 13, second oldest daughter of Joseph P. Kennedy, head of the Federal Maritime Commission, was rushed from the family summer home at Hyannisport to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for an emergency operation shortly after noon today.

A speeding limousine took the young daughter of the maritime commission leader and former securities exchange commission head to Boston.

Though the nature of the emergency operation could not be determined, officials at the hospital described it as a "matter of life and death."

Boy, 9, Fears Knife, Flees Hospital

Police in all radio cars were notified.

David was taken to the hospital by his mother, Mrs. Delia Cornell. Doctors in the out patient department looked at the abscess and said an operation would have to be performed without delay.

The boy was plainly worried by what he heard the doctors advise and, a few minutes later he vanished, through a door.

Jailed Codman Head Faces Fin. Com. Writ

BULLETIN

Application for a writ of habeas corpus, to bring William J. Driscoll, Codman Hill president, before the Finance Commission as a witness Friday, was made in Superior Court this afternoon. Judge Beaudreau set 2 p. m. tomorrow for a hearing. Driscoll, now in jail, will fight issuance of the writ, it is understood.

The Finance Commission's spotlight will be swung on to the Boston public works department tomorrow, with the commissioner and former commissioner as witnesses, it was revealed today.

George R. Farnum, the commission's attorney, announced he was issuing sommonses for the appearance of Public Works Commissioner Edward M. Richardson and former ex-Commissioner Christopher J. Carven. The latter retired January 1, 1937.

According to Farnum, they will be questioned as to whether work

LOVE TRIP LEADS 2 TO JAIL

ROXBURY FOLK WON'T PUT UP HER BAIL

New York, Aug. 10—Slender, dark-eyed Vera Lorden, the young married woman on whom Patrolman Arthur H. Chalmers relies to save him from the electric chair, sobbed in a jail cell here today and vowed that she would do nothing to help him.

She was jailed as a material witness in the murder of pretty little Irma Louise Pradier, whose death is charged to Chalmers.

Unable to supply the $2500 bail set by Judge John J. Freschi in general sessions court, Mrs. Lorden hoped her father-in-law and two sisters-in-law, who live in Roxbury, Mass., would supply the money, but like her duped husband, they refused.

STORY AIDS HIM

"I've blackened my name enough by admitting that I went on a vacation trip through New England with him," she said. "I'm not going to say anything more.

"They took me by surprise last night. If I'd had time to think I wouldn't have said anything then."

But Mrs. Lorden's story, thus far, has helped Chalmers, authorities said, even though the young matron regrets having talked.

Detectives believed that Chalmers, a mounted officer, had slain Miss Pradier, his former sweetheart, in order to raise funds for his "love jaunt" with Mrs. Lorden.

But Chalmers swore that he financed the vacation with $150 that he had borrowed from his brother, George, and under prolonged grilling insisted that he knew nothing of the $1000 that Miss Pradier had withdrawn from three bank accounts immediately before her murder, June 20.

SHOT IN STRUGGLE

Mrs. Lorden's declaration that Chalmers had only "a little money" with him on their illicit love vacation was what helped the officer maintain that defense.

Chalmers, according to other police admits the shooting of the Pradier girl during a "petting party" in his automobile, but claims it was during a scuffle, when the girl grabbed his gun.

According to the district attorney's office, Mrs. Lorden told of the love vacation with Chalmers in detail after questioners had "broken her down." That trip, they quoted her as saying, included stopovers at Old Orchard, Me., Bennington, Vt., and then in Montreal.

She is also said to have admitted seeing a bullet hole in Chalmers' car—where one of the bullets that killed Miss Pradier had hit.

"He never mentioned the French girl to me, though," Mrs. Lorden was quoted as saying.

"He told me that the bullet hit the car a long time ago. He said:

"Oh 'Oho, that's been there for a long time. Some one pegged a shot at me once and that's where it landed.'

"I knew he was married, of course, but there was absolutely nothing in his manner during the eight days I was with him to indicate that he was a murderer.

"The fact that we stopped at automobile camps and inexpensive tourist places proved that he was not well supplied with money."

ROW WITH HUSBAND

The witness said that she had known Chalmers for years before she went away with him. She had frequently gone on dates with him and had a few drinks with him.

They had met, she said, in a Madison avenue restaurant, where she was employed as a waitress.

One of the other waitresses at this restaurant, who called Chalmers a "swell guy," volunteered that Mrs. Lorden had first gone out with him after she had had a tiff with her husband. Then the dates became more frequent.

When the attractive young matron was arraigned in general sessions court, the district attorney's office asked that Judge Freschi set bail at $5000 to guarantee Mrs. Lorden's appearance at Chalmers' trial.

Mrs. Lorden insisted that there was no need of bail.

"What assurance have we that you will be ready to testify when you are wanted?" asked the court.

But Assistant District Attorney McManus broke in:

"This witness has had relationship with the defendant, and the people fear that she will be prevailed upon to leave the jurisdiction of this court."

HUSBAND DOESN'T AID

Judge Freschi thereupon set the bail at $2500.

But Mrs. Lorden couldn't raise that and her husband, John, a room clerk in a men's club, did nothing to aid her in raising the money, so she was jailed "for safekeeping."

It was a dramatic scene when Mrs. Lorden broke the news to her husband that she was involved in the sensational case.

Mrs. Lorden had insisted on a girl reporter going with her to reveal the facts. She walked into the living room of her home, where her husband was reading the newspapers and said:

"John, I went away with Chalmers and was with him for eight days. I think you should know this."

Lorden later said he was going to get a divorce.

Here is Patrolman Arthur H. Chalmers of New York as he enters his cell in New York. He has allegedly confessed former intimacy with Miss Pradier, whose body was found soon after Chalmers left on his so-called "love trip" with Mrs. Lorden. Chalmers' wife and children are prostrated.

Held in New York today as a material witness is this dark-eyed beauty, Mrs. Vera Lorden, who has told of taking a trip through New England with Arthur H. Chalmers, New York mounted police officer, alleged slayer of his one-time sweetheart, Irma Louise Pradier. Roxbury relatives are reported to have refused to aid Mrs. Lorden by furnishing $2500 bail for her release.

CITY COUNCIL ASSAILS PALESTINE PARTITION

A resolution condemning Great Britain for her plan to partition Palestine had been adopted by the Boston city council today.

Passage of the resolution, introduced by Councillor Sidney Rosenberg at a previous meeting, followed a mass protest against the Palestine plan at a Faneuil Hall meeting under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

The resolution reads:

"Whereas, Great Britain was made the protectorate over Palestine and pledged to develop the country as a Homeland for the Jews, and

"Whereas, the nation of the world had trust and faith in Great Britain in carrying out its pledge, and,

"Whereas, Lord Balfour, in 1924, by a declaration reaffirmed the stand of Great Britain to establish Palestine as a Homeland for the Jews, and,

"Whereas, millions of dollars have been spent in the development of that country and thousands of immigrants induced to settle there, and,

"Whereas, the British Commission has recommended that the country be divided into three separate parts for the Jews, Arabs, and the British government; therefore, be it

"RESOLVED that the City Council of Boston, in meeting assembled, desire to record its opposition to the partition plans as outlined by the British Commission and is of the opinion that adherence to the original plan of the Protectorate by Great Britain for the establishment of Palestine as a Homeland for the Jews is the most satisfactory arrangement for bringing lasting peace and contentment to that land and the people who inhabit it.

"Be it further RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from Massachusetts."

Rubye Zioncheck In New Romance

Hollywood, Aug. 10 (US) — Romance again has entered the colorful life of Rubye Nix Zioncheck, widow of the prankish Washington congressman who ended his life a year ago after many erratic escapades.

She and Leo Fields, New York and Baltimore theater owner, are "that way about each other but not exactly engaged," Mrs. Zioncheck admitted today.

Zeppelin Service Seen by Next Year

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—Revival next year of Germany's transatlantic Zeppelin passenger service was predicted today by Captain Max Pruss, commander of the airship Hindenburg, which crashed at Lakehurst, N. J., three months ago with loss of 36 lives.

Captain Pruss said the new Zeppelins, now under construction, would be buoyed by non-inflammable helium gas.

British Failure Seen Basis of Palestine Plan

Rabbi Meier Berlin, president of the World Mizrachi, the orthodox wing of the Zionist movement, gives the reasons for his opposition to the British plan to partition Palestine in the following special article, written exclusively for Universal Service. Rabbi Berlin is attending the Zionist congress at Zurich, Switzerland.

By RABBI MEIER BERLIN
(President of the Mizrachi Organization)

(World copyright, 1937, by Universal Service. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 10 (US)—Lord Peel and his associates of the royal commission for Palestine have not proposed the partition of the country with any degree of ease. The commissioners themselves described their proposal as "a surgical operation."

Evidently they felt what they proposed merely represented a deep incision into the area and structure of the land as it has evolved through long historic processes.

The friendly physician advises that before the knife is used a few conditions must first be inquired into and established:

First, it is essential to ascertain whether the surgical operation is indispensably necessary.

Second, whether there are grounds for hope that the operation will indeed help prolong the patient's life and restore his health.

One fails to find these two essential conditions in the proposal of the Palestine Royal Commission.

Isn't it strange that the report has for a number of years completely conveyed the impression that the situation regarding Palestine administration by the league mandate was more or less satisfactory?

CASE NOT PROVED

One might have been inclined to give earnest consideration to the surgical operation plan had he been convinced that this is the only way out.

Even the Arabs, although they have been trying for abolition of the mandate, have not proved by facts and figures that the mandate worked to their economic disadvantage.

The only fact which led the Royal Commission to decide against the workability of the mandate is the circumstance that the Arabs have in the course of many months been murdering Jews and Britishers, old and young.

Is this really conclusive proof that the mandate cannot work? Does not the British empire have to grapple with problems of greater unrest involving greater loss of life and property in various parts of her wideflung domains?

Has the British government ever come to the conclusion that to face such unrest in its system of government she must depart from certain areas, leaving behind the deep, bleding sore of a surgical operation?

The report of the Royal Commission would have been correct enough to admit that if the Palestine government acted with greater energy and firmness the Arab rising would have been stopped. Economically the Arabs have no grounds to complain against the Jew.

HITS BRITISH RULE

It remains now to make clear that the partition proposal has been put forward suddenly, unexpectedly.

Its origin lies in the fact that the British government has not fulfilled its obligations as minister over Palestine on the basis of its mandate and in fact the Arabs, though they have every reason to be satisfied with the prevailing state of affairs, seem to be dissatisfied.

Their position is not one of legitimate grievance but of determination to extend Arab sovereignty over the historic homeland of the Jewish people to whom it belongs. This is the only cause of Arab opposition to the mandate.

Is this sufficient ground for Great Britain to determine to perform a surgical operation upon the Jewish people and its historic homeland?

Why should the Jewish people agree to this operation? It has not been proved that partition is indispensable or that it will cure the disease. Why partition, the Jews ask? Their answer must be "no."

Wise Group Breaks With Congress on Plan

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 10 (AP)—An open rift over the future on Palestine broke in the World Zionist Congress today.

Almost half the voting delegates ignored the regular congress session and attended a separate meeting under the chairmanship of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York.

The special meeting was called to draw up counter proposals to Zionist President Chaim Weizmann's plan, which would permit consideration of the British plan for partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states.

The followers of Rabbi Wise were dubbed the "neinsager group" (no-sayers), because of their determined opposition to any plan for division of the Holy Land.

More than 200 of the 400 congress delegates responded to Wise's appeal for "all or nothin" and met in the Klaridenhoff building, instead of going to the regular congress session in the Stadt theater.

An inter-party committee was formed, including three American members, to draft resolutions for the "neinsagers."

American members of the committee were Robert Szold and Golda Myerson of New York City, and Miss Pearl Franklin of Chicago.

one line of questioning throughout, established the motive.

"Will you be able to name the slayer?" he was asked.

"We will, or come pretty close to it," he replied.

A high police official, who has been active in the investigation from the start, when told of the coroner's statement, replied:

"We certainly will give the coroner a big vote of thanks if he can name the killer for us."

In some circles it was believed that a close friend, with whom he had close contact, and who was in a position to know of his comings and goings from his home in the fashionable east side of this city, waylaid and murdered Dr. Webster.

With the motive established, the identity of the slayer known, together with the ownership of the 45 calibre army automatic pistol, only lack of legal evidence is delaying the arrest of the murderer, it is said.

The end of the inquest is close at hand, the coroner declared. It will take approximately ten days to prepare a transcript of all the testimony, and this will be filed in the Superior Court. If no arrest is made in the case by that time, it is probable that Attorney-General John P. Hartigan will call a special session of the Grand Jury if the regular session of the September grand jury is not in session.

Both Coroner Strauss and police have been extremely careful in guarding the identities of witnesses because of the welter of rumors involving prominent persons.

Dr. Webster was murdered on the morning of July 16 by some one who laid in wait for him when he arrived home. His wife and eight-year-old daughter were away and the house was empty.

Convict Returned, Flees Georgia Jail

Marietta, Ga., Aug. 10 (AP)—Leo McIntosh, 35, returned to Georgia from Alcatraz Federal Prison a month ago, was freed from the Cobb County Jail today by two men who held up the jailor with pistols.

Sheriff E. M. Legg described McIntosh as one of the state's most notorious criminals. He was under sentence for murder, four kidnapings, highway robbery, car thefts and lesser crimes, the sheriff said.

S. T. Huddleston, the jailor, said two men came to the jail early today and called "Open up!"

Legg said the two men flourished a gun in the sleepy jailor's face and forced him to lead them to McIntosh's cell.

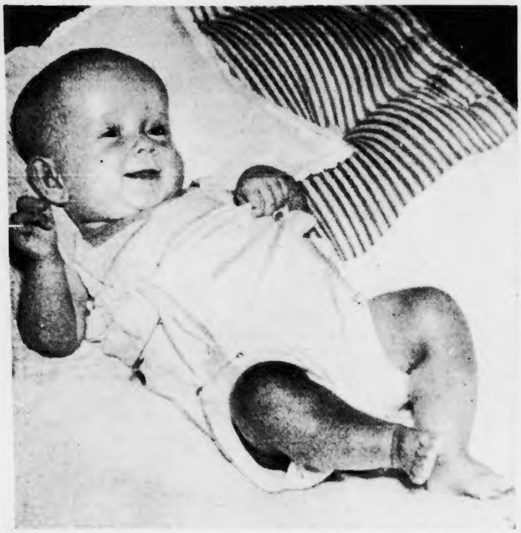
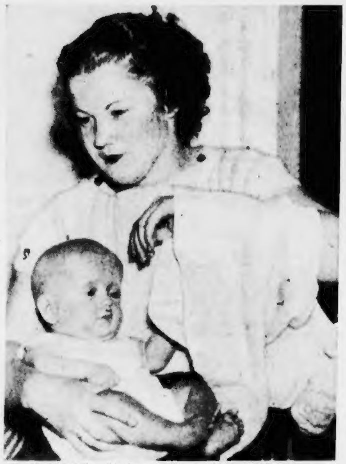
RAISED BY HER TWO SISTERS

'Death Baby' Revealed Hre; Thriving

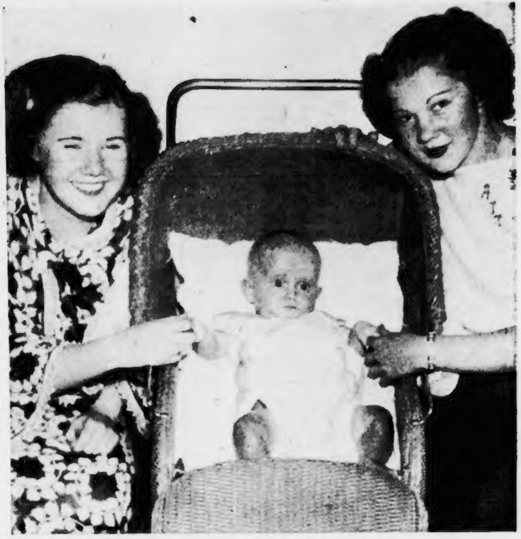
"MIRACLE CHILD" SIX MONTHS OLD



1—This is Marian Thompson, Caesarian baby, born after the death of her mother, Mrs. Helen Thompson, last January, at Boston City Hospital. The child weighed four pounds, 10 ounces at birth. Now, six months later, she tips the scales at 10 pounds. She owes her health and well-being to her two sisters, who have been mothers and nurse to her.



2—Here, holding Marian, is 19-year-old Anne Thompson, one of the child's two "mother-sisters." Anne's loving care has helped to bring her tiny sister to health and normalcy, with the aid of another sister.



HELEN THOMPSON BABY THOMPSON ANNE THOMPSON

4—And here are the two pretty nurse-sister-mothers and their charge. Helen is at left in this picture, with Anne at the other side of the baby they love, and whom they have protected so tenderly. The father refused to have the baby adopted, and the sisters were only too glad to assume the responsibility of its care, delicate though the task might be. The winsomeness of Marian in this photo shows plainly that her nurses have overlooked nothing to see that she is developed into a bright, normal child

'Miracle' Operation Of Boston Surgeons

While Philadelphia's miracle baby was being buried, a Dorchester baby, also born after the death of the mother, was revealed here today as alive and healthy after six months.

The Philadelphia baby, who aroused the attention of the entire medical world, lost a battle for life Sunday morning after living only 46 hours.

Last January death stilled the life of Mrs. Helen Thompson, wife of John Thompson, a Dorchester taxi driver, but failed to reach her daughter, Marian, born a few minutes later.

Mrs. Thompson was suffering from a heart ailment when she wen to Boston City Hospital.

FIGHT FOR CHILD

Physicians examining her agreed that the frail woman would be unable to survive the rigors of childbirth. They decided to perform a Caesarian operation immediately upon death.

On January 20, Mrs. Thompson died, the hospital records show, and a few minutes later, under the supervision of Dr. Anthony Matarese and Dr. Frank O'Brien of the obstetrical staff, her baby was taken from her. Marian weighed four pounds and ten ounces.

Doctors and nurses immediately began a desperate fight to save the child's life. Working skillfully with all the facilities of modern medicine they finally won, and on April 16, nearly three months later, Marian was able to leave the hospital. She weighed six pounds and was normal in every respect.

SISTERS TAKE CHARGE

Refusing to consider the possibility of adoption, the father took the motherless mite to his home, where his two elder daughters, Anne, 19, and Helen, 16, took up the physicians' battle.

Nursing the infant with tender care, they watched her every movement, saw that she was fed, that she was taken daily to lie in the sun and absorb its life-giving rays.

Like the doctors, they were successful. Today Marian weighs ten pounds. She plays and crows in her perambulator as does any other normal child of her age. She does not know—and she never will if her father and sisters have their way—how close those icy fingers came to her.

'Miracle Baby' Put in Mother's Coffin; 15,000 at Bier

Philadelphia, Aug. 10 (INS)—Double funeral services were conducted today for Mrs. Mary Boccassini and her posthumously born daughter, Frances Mary, who lived only 46 hours after being taken from the body of her mother last Friday.

Each dressed in white silk, they lay in a single coffin, with the arms of the mother encircling the tiny infant she never saw. They lay "in state" for six hours in a public funeral parlor while a crowd of 15,000 men, women and children filed past the bier.

The crowd, composed largely of women, many of whom carried babies of their own, formed four-abreast. An official of the undertaking establishment asked the father if they should be let in.

"Yes," said Dominic Boccassini, "let them see my baby. I want to thank all the people who came to see my wife and baby. It was nice of them."

Flood Leaves Hull Without Any Water

The Hull village section of Hull was without water for more than two hours today when amain broke, flooding Elm square.

Automobiles were hub-deep in water and 300 summer residents, many of whom commute daily to Boston, found on water for washing, shaving or cooking.

Police Shot Fatatal

Pittsfield, Aug. 10—Adam Sm Stickley, 26, of Pittsfield, shot int in the head by a patrolman durduring a chase of a stolen car, was de a dead of his wound today.

Police Wondering If Judge Meant It

Judge Frank D. Crowley of Chelsea District Court told them yesterday that something ought to be done about it. The judge turned his censure on women's attire in dismissing the case of a man who had been arrested for wearing only trunks at Revere Beach.

"All I own is a pair of trunks," the judge said. "If I went to Revere Beach I would be arrested, too. I think the rule is unreasonable. It was probably made many years ago and ought to be changed.

"Why, at the best beaches in the country men wear only trunks. Down in Florida last winter men were wearing only trunks on all the big beaches. I wore them down there myself and I don't see why they can't be worn up here.

"I think it might be a good idea for the police to check up on women's bathing suits as well as those of men."

Boat Trials

2 Lions Claw Chef Snapping Pictures

Bridgeport, Ct., Aug. 10 (AP)—Two lions severely clawed Fritz Menn, 27, an employe in a restaurant zoo as he attempted to photograph them. He was rescued from between their cages by two motorists who heard screams of they drove past.

Menn, who sustained 30 lacerations, told police he had believed the lions to be friendly and had taken a camera over a four-foot fence separating the cages from the restaurant proper because a young woman wanted some pictures.

ASK HEARING ON EXTRADITION OF FUGITIVE

A petition for a hearing before Governor Hurley before he acts upon the extradition request of Governor Fred P. Cone of Florida for return of Forest Hill, fugitive from the Florida state prison, was filed today by Irwin T. Dorch, counsel for the fugitive.

Assistant Attorney General James J. Bacigalupo, who heard the evidence on Governor Cone's extradition request, is expected to make his report to Governor Hurley tomorrow. At that time, Governor Hurley will make his decision on Dorch's request for another hearing.

Governor's secretary John V. Mahoney also announced today that Governor Barzilla W. Clark of Idaho, had withdrawn his request for extradition of Richard S. Chase of Oregon, who was wanted by Boise, Iraho, police on a charge of altering a telegraphic message.

Pigeons Die on Wing

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—Hundreds of pigeons, apparently poisoned by an unknown hand, died on the wing today in the area between Central Park and Riverside Drive in the Seventies.

The birds dropped by the score. Police gathered 70 dead birds from the streets within an hour after the first was found.

LIGHTNING BOLT KILLS MAN IN WESTBORO

in Framingham, however, said that he would recover.

Like the storm that swept the coastline yesterday, today's storm came crashing through with little warning. Skies darkened rapidly. Thunder and lightning followed.

Freak bolts of lightning hit all about Greater Boston. The cloudburst drove the mercury down 17 degrees in almost as many minutes. The thermometer read 86 at noon. During the storm it dropped to 69 degrees.

Streets in the city and out of it ran like rivers for half an hour. Thousands of persons, at lunch in flimsy, summery clothing, were drenched.

One of the most unusual lightning hits was at Nantasket. A mile east of the Atlantic House a bolt crashed into the ocean, raising a 50-foot waterspout, that geysered for nearly 10 minutes as hundreds of persons watched.

The fallen branch blocked traffic for almost an hour while street and fire departments' employes worked to clear it.

Just a few hundred yards from the City Fuel Company wharves in East Boston, two unidentified men in a rowboat were hurled into the sea by a giant wave.

Dozens of persons watched while they swam to the docks and were assisted up a lader to safety. The rowboat was swamped.

A young Connecticut couple, spending their honeymoon in Plymouth, were rescued from the choppy water of the harbor there after a sudden squall capsized their 22-foot knockabout sail boat.

Rice Gilkey of Groton, Conn., was taken from the overturned boat, while his young wife was saved by two Plymouth youths, Robert Burns and Joseph Brewer, who chanced to be passing in a motorboat.

Coast Guard and police patrol boats, given emergency calls, turned back after witnessing the rescue.

The storm hit shortly after the weather bureau had forecast there would be showers, but no relief from the oppressive weather.

Fears Himself So He Gives Up Gun

Declaring he feared he might kill himself, Henry J. Obert, 35, of Berkeley street, South End, walked into South End police station today and surrendered a loaded revolver, it was disclosed in municipal court.

Only one empty shell was in the revolver. Officers Richard M. Hickey and Harvey Yates told the court, and because Obert had no license they were forced to charge him with carrying the weapon.

4 DIE, 5 HURT IN FLORIDA AIR CRASH

jured were suffering severe shock and back and head injuries.

Pete Dygert, airport manager, said the power line was strung at 11 p. m. last night and that he had not been notified. It was not there last night when another plane took off for Miami at 10:20 p. m. Dygert said.

Dygert said the line was put up by the Florida Power and Light company as a temporary measure because of power failure in an underground cable.

The plane had risen about 40 feet when it hit the line. The stricken liner fluttered crazily for more than 100 yards then struck the earth. It plowed up the ground for another 150 feet before coming to rest against a small tree.

MOTORS IN FLAMES

Both motors were enveloped in flames for a moment after the impact, but the blaze died quickly and the cabin was not touched by the fire.

The stricken craft finally stopped jammed up against a small tree. The wings lay several hundred feet away. The motors also were a considerable distance from the plane.

Airport employes said survivors probably owed their lives to the fact the rear part of the cabin was almost intact. Not so the fore part—the twisted wreckage looked like a battered tin can.

Two passengers who had disembarked here were among the eyewitnesses.

Charles G. Williams of Orlando, Fla., said Dr. Charles M. Gratz of New York was the "hero" of the accident.

"He was among the first to enter the plane following the crash," Williams said, "and gave what care he could to the injured passengers. He faced possible death or injury himself entering the wreckage, as it appeared the plane would burst into flames at any time."

THREE CRASHES

"E. W. Philpots, a 16-year-old boy, was thrown clear of the plane and apparently was not seriously injured. He didn't know his father was killed.

"The pilot and the Philpot boy were the only ones thrown clear. The others were trapped in the wreckage and took about 10 minutes to get them out."

Dead Pilot Pioneer Parachute Jumper

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP)—Captain Stuart Dietz, Eastern Airlines pilot killed at Daytona Beach, Fla., was the first national guardeman to make a parachute jump with the official sanction of the War Department. That was in June, 1926, when Dietz was 22 years old.

Jamaica Plain Cafe License Protested

Led by two clergymen, residents of Jamaica Plain today requested the Boston Licensing Board to revoke the seven-day beer license of the Moraine Cafe, on South Huntington avenue.

Monsignor Francis A. Burke, of the Blessed Sacrament Church, Rev. Eugene A. Maguire, chaplain of the House of the Angel Guardian, and Francis H. Dolan, president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of the Blessed Sacrament Church, were among those protesting.

The board reserved decision.

Pair Jailed After Maine Vice Raid

Portland, Me., Aug. 10—Two men were remanded to jail today by Judge Harry C. Libby, in municipal court, when they were unable to post bail of $2000 each on vice charges involving the alleged forcible detention of a 28-year-old woman.

The men were John Smith, 42, of Charlotte, Va., and Andrew Hooks, 36, of Portland. They were arrested in a police raid on a Vine street dwelling.

FLED "ETHER FIEND"

Boston Evening American Photo

Here is 19-year-old Harriet Anderson of Malden with the bicycle she was riding when a so-called "ether fiend" attempted to drug her, using what police believe to have been a powerful anesthetic. She was first of several girls subjected to similar encounters with the "fiend."

ETHER FIEND HUNTED AFTER GIRL ATTACKS

Malden and Melrose police today were searching for an etherizing maniac who went on a rampage in these two communities last night, sending one girl to a hospital, drugged and hysterical, and frightening two others.

Harriet Anderson, 19, of Faulkner place, Melrose, a graduate of Melrose High School last June, was the first victim.

She was riding her bicycle down Washington street, Melrose, near Goodyear avenue, when a man walked from a parked car into her path. He was waving his arms and the girl slowed down. As she went closer, a sweet, sickish odor assailed her and she felt liquid showered upon her.

The girl retained sufficient consciousness to pass the man and make her way to a drug store where police were summoned and she was removed to Melrose Hospital.

A short time later Malden police were summoned to Medford street near Bell Rock Cemetery, where two girls were seized by a man under much the same circumstances. The girls were on foot and the man leaped from a darkened spot near the cemetery and seized one of them. The girls screamed and a man, passing near, ran to their assistance, putting the assailant to flight.

5000 Qts. Vermont Milk Spoiled in R. I.

Providence, Aug. 10 (AP)—A drastic move to prevent sale of Vermont milk in Rhode Island and thereby relieve the surplus production in this state, department of agriculture inspectors today poured red vegetable coloring matter into approximately 5000 quarts of milk shipped in from daries in northern New England not licensed by this state.

This action, ordered by Burton K. Harris, state director of agriculture, climaxed a campaign he has been waging for months to persuade eight or ten Rhode Island dealers to cease using milk from Bellows Falls, dairies and to buy milk from Rhode Island producers, some of whom have been without a market because of a surplus production of about 5000 quarts a day.

A few of the dealers, however, refused to co-operate in the move to end the surplus, Harris declared, and the department decided to identify the Vermont milk by coloring it.

Man's Tongue Bitten by Rattler

Newton, N. J., Aug. 10 (AP)—Harry Osburn, 56, a snake exhibitor, wound a rattler around his neck at a show, stuck his tongue out at it, and was bitten.

Physicians at Newton hospital said Osburn's tongue was swollen to twice its normal size. They administered serum rushed to the hospital by state police from three nearby sources.

FIN. COM. CALLS RICHARDSON, CARVEN

was given the Codman Hill Construction Company, prior to Richardson's appointment, without competitive bidding.

MAYOR DENIED TALK

Farnum's announcement caused a stir at city hall, as it was believed some of Mayor Mansfield's testimony may go under Farnum's fire when Richardson takes the stand in the city council chamber at the public hearing tomorrow.

Last week, with the mayor before him as a witness, Farnum alleged Richardson had told him, at a private interview, of a conversation with Mansfield shortly after Richardson took office.

According to Farnum, Richardson said he called the mayor's attention to the fact that the department, under Carven, had given jobs to the Codman Hill Construction Company without asking for bids.

When Farnum questioned Mansfield about this, the mayor angrily denied any such conversation with the public works head.

Up to now, except for very brief periods, the Finance Commission investigation has been directed at work given the Codman Hill concern by the White Fund.

The shift of emphasis to the public works department opens up the subject of snow removal, patch paving and other contractor services, it is understood.

Earlier today Farnum announced through Robert E. Cunniff, secretary of the commission, that he was preparing a writ of habeas corput to present to superior court to bring William J. Driscoll, Codman Hill president, before the commission as a witness.

JAILED HEAD SOUGHT

If the court authorizes issuance of a writ, Driscoll, according to present plans, will be brought to the council chamber from Charles street jail on Thursday.

His appearance as a witness at the public hearings has been long awaited by those following the course of the inquiry from week to week.

Driscoll has been in jail since July 1 for failing to bring in his books and records, which were subpoenaed by the Finance Commission in its investigation.

The public hearings in this investigation resume tomorrow in the council chamber instead of in Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

South Boston Girl Escapes Death in Shots at Prowler

Miss Margaret Sullivan, 29, of Second street, South Boston, narrowly escaped death today as a bullet from a night watchman's pistol whizzed into her bedroom and buried itself in the wall.

The bullet was one of two that Joseph Grinkevich, the watchman, fired at a prowler he had routed from the grounds of a coppersmith plant in Third street.

The fleeing man was captured by Patrolman James Maloney as he was climbing over an eight-foot high wire fence. Maloney had been attracted by the shooting.

GIRL STRIKERS GASSED IN RIOT

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 10 (AP)—Screaming girl strikers, 150 strong clashed with police today in a club-swinging riot at the Bonner Worth plant of Dominion Woolens and Textile, Ltd.

Police tossed a tear-gas bomb to send the girls gasping and weeping in retreat, and then turned on men strikers who joined the fray.

A woman hit Mayor George A. MacDonald in the jaw. Other strikers drove him back when he attempted to go through the picket line at the plant, which was closed by a walkout of 750 workers seven weeks ago.

Several persons were injured. Three girl strikers and three men were arested.

PROBE REPORT WPA UNIONS AID SPAIN

Promises of speedy investigation came from all sides today following reports that Works Progress Administration unions here have been sending contributions to Spain from slim federal relief checks.

Incensed by these reports at a time when thousands of WPA workers are being discharged for economy reasons and thousands more are suffering pay cuts, City Councillar Robert Wilson declared he intends to move for a two-way probe of the situation.

Wilson stated he would seek an investigation by the city council here and would very likely lay the matter before Congressman George Holden Tinkham for action in Washington.

PLAN TWO PROBES

"I know that the city has all it can do to care for its needy and to continue its contributions toward the expenses of WPA projects in Boston," he said.

"If WPA workers here have so much money that they can not only make contributions to labor strikes in this country, but can also spare generous contributions to ship abroad to a foreign country then an investigation is most certainly called for, and I am going to seek one."

It was planned also to investigate hundreds of favored WPA workers, young people living with their families or in groups and active in the unionization of federal relief workers.

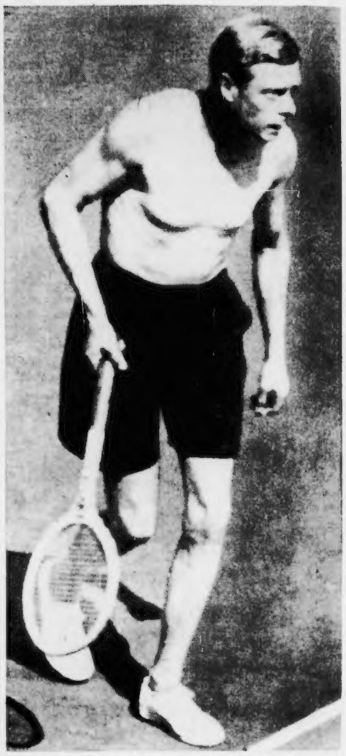
Federal WPA projects not directly under the control of the state WPA administrator will be a special target of the probe, it was learned, as complaints of "pull" reached the ears of city officials.

AIR RED CHARGES

A new airing of old charges of Communism in WPA projects seemed a certainty. In the federal projects persons able to live otherwise are holding jobs because of radical activities of leadership in the WPA union, it was charged.

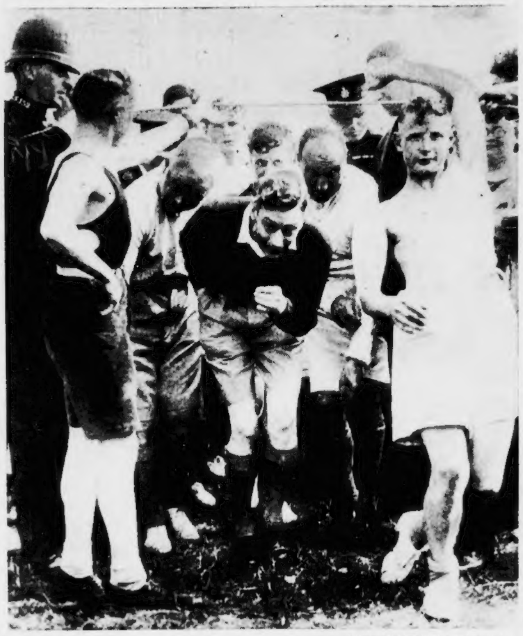
It was learned that the original WPA union has lost many of its leaders, who have left to organize for the CIO or fight for Spain in the revolution. Albert Pezzati, former WPA union head, quit a month ago to work for the CIO in the Providence strike.

KING AND EX-KING AS THEY GO IN FOR SUMMER SPORTS



International News Photograph Service

All right, boys. You can throw away your tennis shirts. The stripped-to-the-waist style is being set this season, at Venice, by the world's one-time masculine fashion arbiter, His Royal Highness the Duke of Windsor. Vacationing with him in the ancient Italian city of canals and gondolas is his American-born bride, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson.



International News Photograph Service

Garbed in shorts and sweater, King George VI of England proves himself very much "one of the boys" as he visits a summer camp which his brother, the Duke of York, maintains at Southwold, Eng., for underprivileged youngsters. His Majesty is availing himself of royal prestige by slipping under a rope barrier in order to get a better view of a football match.

Hunt Racket Czars In Extortion Plot

New York, Aug. 10 (INS)—An international police search was under way today for Louis "Lepke" Buchalter and Jacob "Gurrah" Shapiro, New York city's top-notch racket czars.

Head of the largest "protection trust" in the east, the two men are being sought as leaders of a gang that allegedly extorted $7,000,000 annually from the garment industry. Special prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, New York's racket-buster, yesterday obtained indictments against Lepke and Gurrah along with 14 others. Both Lepke and Gurrah are believed to be in hiding abroad.

Find Missing Girl Riding Horses In Circus Act

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 10—Auburn-haired Doris Major, who quit cigaret selling at a fashionable Washington hotel to do "fancy riding" under the big top, looked ahead today to telling her "grandchildren about my experience with a circus."

"I've always wanted to do it," she said of her trick riding act with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, where her father found her yesterday after she had been missing eight days.

Malcolm G. Major, artist of the Washington Star, said she was happy with the circus "and making good and I'll let her stay on."

"She just wanted to get away from everything," Major said. "She's ridden since she was eight years old, and the circus should be good for her after seven years of indoor life."

"What made you run away?" a reporter asked.

"I got tired of working."

Circus officials said she had "made good" as an equestrienne since joining the troupe at Covington, Va. Last week under the name "Billy Sargeant."

Duke Gives Up Hunt for Castle; Return to London Looms

Vienna, Aug. 10 (INS)—Sir Walter Monckton, attorney-general of the Duchy of Cornwall, returned to England today after a lenthy conference with the Duke of Windsor at Castle Wasserleonburg, at which it is understood the prospects of Windsor's eventual return to London were discussed.

Lending strength to persistent reports he has such plans in mind, it was learned the Duke and Duchess have abandoned their original intention of purchasing an estate in Austria for a permanent stay.

The Duke inspected many castles for sale by Austrian aristocrats, but the search has been abandoned.

If he is able to return to England, the Duke does not intend to play a political role, reliable sources said, but insists he is entitled to occupy his seat in the House of Lords.

The problem is slated for further discussion when Windsor meets his younger brother, the Duke of Kent, in Carinthia tomorrow.

Washburn in Hop Over Mt. McKinley

Anchorage, Alaska, Aug. 10 (AP)—Bradford Washburn, Jr., Harvard University geologist, flew over Mt. McKinley yesterday in a plane piloted by Estol Call, to take photographs of the 20,300-foot mountain, it was learned today.

Bradford reported the plane climbed 22,500 feet, encountering a 70-mile wind and temperature of 15 degrees below zero. With Robert Bates of Philadelphia, Washburn recently climbed 17,150-foot Mt. Lucainia, previously unscaled.

CUT IN QUABBIN COST URGED

Predicting that annual metropolitan tax assessments can be reduced $600,000 a year, the Boston Municipal Research Bureau issued a 4000-word report today, urging that total expenditures on the Quabbin dam project be limited to not more than $49,000,000.

Expenditure of $65,000,000 was authorized by the General Court in 1926-27, for the construction of the two large water basins on the Swift and Ware rivers, to supply the Boston municipal reservoir at Wachusetts.

With approximately $42,000,000 of that amount already spent or obligated, the Research Bureau in its report today asserted that not more than $6,700,000 will be needed to satisfactorily complete the project.

An excess watershed yield above current consumption needs of the Boston area has already been developed, according to the survey, with a rapid rise in consumption during the next five years considered improbable.

5 Flee Factory Fire in Haverhill

Haverhill, Aug. 10—After battling unavailingly against a fire started by a machinery spark, five men employed in the Merrimack Sawdust Company were finally forced to flee the plant today.

The fire caused a damage of approximately $6000 before it was extinguished by firemen, called first tinguished.

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt was pledged today to a "hands off" policy in New York city's sizzling mayoralty campaign as the rival Democratic candidates traded bitter recriminations.

Stirred by reports the Chief Executive had promised to support Jeremiah T. Mahoney, pro-New Deal Democrat, for mayor, Marvin McIntyre, White House secretary, issued this statement:

"The President repeated for the thousandth time that he has not taken part, is not taking part and will not take part in any local primary election except in his home town and home county."

Newport Man Sues For Fla. Divorce

West Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 10 (AP)—Howland Spencer of Palm Beach and Newport, R. I., sougth a divorce today from his socially prominent wife, Mrs. Emeline Harriman Spencer, on grounds of mental cruelty.

Spencer's attorney said Mrs. Spencer is a sister of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., and a sister-in-law of Mrs. J. B. Harriman, widow of the New York banker.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer were married December 1, 1931.

FIGHT ATTEMPT TO BLOCK HOUR, WAGE BILL

Washington, Aug. 10 (INS)—A desperate effort by foes of wage-hour legislation to throttle the Black-Connery bill in the House Rules committee was combatted by the Democratic leaders today.

With the House holding the key to adjournment and the entire House urogram and the entire wage-hour bill, the Rules committee meets tomorrow.

If the committee, which places bills on the preferred status for House consideration, grants a special rule the Black-Connery bill may be called up Thursday for debate and a vote.

Should the committee refuse to grant a rule, House leaders may call a Democratic caucus to consider a resolution to order the Rules committee to permit the House to consider the measure.

While Chairman O'Connor (D.) of New York, of the Rules Committee, backed the Black-Connery bill, Southern members of the committee opposed it.

SEES BILL BLOCKED

"I think you can say that the bill is blocked," said Representative Cox (D.) of Georgia, member of the committee and foe of the wage-hour bill.

Potential settlement of the legislative controversies between the administration and Congressional blocs over farm relief and sugar import quotas today served to smooth the path to adjournment by August 21.

The farm relief contest appeared settled after the Senate Agriculture committee voted unanimously to report a farm bill one week after Congress reconvenes. This would apply either to a special session this fall, or to the regular session in January.

This instruction was to be submitted to the Senate for approval in the form of an amendment to the Smith resolution, proposing a sweeping inquiry into farm problems.

SUGAR PACT NEAR

The sugar controversy, which involved a conflict over proposed freezing of refined sugar imports from Puerto Rico and Hawaii, also appeared settled. The sugar bloc proposed a percentage quota for refined sugar to apply both to the United States and the insular possessions.

It was said to have the approval of administration officials.

The substitute judicial reorganization bill remained in conference, where Senate and House conferees were wrangling over a Senate provision requiring the Attorney General to show a "legal interest" before intervening in lower federal court cases where the constitutionality of an act of Congress is challenged. House conferees demanded the condition be removed, so the Attorney General will have unlimited power to intervene in such cases.

Suspect Facing Trial Hangs Self

New York, Aug. 10 (INS)—In the darkness of gloomy old Tombs prison, a self-made gallows tree bore its bitter fruit today.

Facing trial as a forger after admitting theft of $25,000 from his employes, Robert Gray, 55, an accountant, looped his belt over a crossbar in his cell and hanged himself.

WHERE 3 WERE HURT IN MALDEN

Just before this truck snapped off the electric pole, bringing down a 5000-volt live wire, it was in collision with a passenger auto. Three occupants of the latter were seriously injured. The double crash occurred at Eastern avenue and Broadway, Malden. The truck driver, Leroy M. Giblin of Springvale, Me., escaped uninjured, just missed by the deadly electric wire which lashed about, shooting sparks, until it set the splintered pole afire.

New Madrid Drive Opens by Rebels

Madrid, Aug. 10 (AP)—Madrid's western front rumbled into new life today in what appeared to be the start of a second big insurgent push to hammer a government wedge out of insurgent rearguard territory.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's infantrymen, based in shell-ripped villages and on the sun-broiled plains west of this besieged city, renewed their attack on Villanueva De La Canada, the point of General Jose Miaja's spearhead.

Although the onslaught lacked the intensity of the former counter-offensive, it semed to be the first move in a new attempt to regain all the towns which Miaja's sweating "milicianos" seized during the first two weeks of July.

LONDON TIMES HITS NAZI BAN

London, Aug. 10 (AP) — The Times of London announced today there "could be no question" of accepting the 'dictation' of the Nazi government by replacing its expelled Berlin correspondent with one "more amenable."

The German government yesterday ordered Norman Ebbutt, widely quoted Berlin correspondent of the Times for about 15 years, to leave Germany within two weeks in retaliation for the expulsion of three German correspondents from Great Britain.

The Times was informed by the British foreign office that the German government wanted its correspondent in Berlin to be a man "who will pay less attention to work considered here as trivialities and more attention to what is wanted."

Immediately a spokesman for London's famed "thunderer" replied:

"We are not going to send a man to Berlin at dictation of the Nazis. Unless the Germans suffer an attack of sense within the next few days and keep Ebbutt we shall leave the Berlin post vacant.

"The case is very understandable. The Germans want the case of their men reconsidered by Britain—which it won't be."

Seek New Judge In Robbery Case

Auburn, Me., Aug. 10—Attorney William H. Hines, counsel for Henry Selvitella and Anthony Cortese, both of Boston, held in connection with a Livermore Falls bank robbery, today sought a transfer of arraignment from Livermore Falls to Lewiston or Auburn.

Hines said Judge Edmund C. Carey of the Livermore Fall municipal court helped to chase the man who robbed the bank and was shot by one of the bandits. For this reason, he declared, he thought someone else should preside at the arraignmnt.

Confessed Killer of 8th Baby Has 9th

Detroit, Aug. 10 (INS)—Mrs. Virginia Broadway, who allegedly confessed to beating her 13-months-old daughter, Donna Jo, to death with the heel of a slipper because the child's crying made her "mad," has given birth to another child—her ninth—it was revealed today.

The latest arrival, a red-haired, blue-eyed boy, will be cared for temporarily in St. Mary's Hospital, while Mrs. Broadway is removed from the hospital to her cell in the county jail where she will await her trial, set for next month.

One man and two boys suffered injuries that may cause death and three other men were hurt in a collision at Eastern avenue and Broadway, Malden, today.

The car in which they were riding turned over in the crash with a heavy truck.

A 5,000-volt live wire was torn down and ignited the pole when the force of the collision threw the truck into a telegraph pole, breaking it and uprooting it.

Reported dying at Malden hospital are Joseph Copotosto, 14, South street, Somerville, and his brother, Salvia, 15. Their father, Anthony, 42, received injuries to his side and chest.

Nicola Dominick, 53, Ivaloo street, Somerville, is dying at Maplewood hospital from a crushed chest. His son, Frank, 19, driver of the fatal car, suffered injuries. Ralph Copotosto, 40, of Concord, is at Maplewood hospital with spinal injuries.

The truck driver, Leroy M. Giblin, Springvale, Me., was uninjured.

2 Youths Accused In 'Strip Holdup'

New York, Aug. 10 (INS)—Jesse Hollingsworth, 22, and his 17-year-old companion, Leroy Barrow, were being held in $5000 bail each today following charges that they stripped Actor-Playwright Albert Carroll of all his clothing in a dawn Park avenue holdup.

The two, who gave their homes as Jacksonville, Fla., were seized by detectives shortly after had pushed Carroll, clad only in shorts, into a hospital foyer.

THREAT-MAKER PUT UNDER $400 PEACE BOND

Salem, Aug. 10—Alfred D. (Scrapper) Reed of Danvers today was found guilty of threatening to kill John C. Sawyer, Topsfield gentleman farmer, and his wife, Louise.

Judge George B. Sears imposed three months' prison terms on each of the two complaints, suspended sentence for a year and placed Reed under bond of $400 "to keep peace, especially against these two people."

Reed's attorney, George Ferguson, entered a vigorous objection to the bond requirement, which he charged placed his client in double jeopardy.

DENIES CHARGES

Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer charged that Reed threatened them because he believed they had been instrumental in breaking up a romance with a Danvers woman who has been their guest.

On the stand, Reed, gray-haired and thin, denied the charges.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer testified that Reed had threatened to "kill them on sight." Sawyer said that when he received the phone call, he handed the receiver to his wife and both of them listened in by holding the received between them.

HE FEARS BULLETS.

The 200-pound gentleman farmer said he did not fear Reed, but that he was "afraid of bullets." He declared Reed told him he would "lie unmercifully" about Sawyer in connection with a suit to contest the will of Sawyer's mother, Mrs. Bertha C. Sawyer, who left him a $40,000 estate.

Two sons by a first marriage are contesting the bequest. They had been named as beneficiaries in a prior will.

Last May Mrs. Sawyer attracted nationwide attention when she was routed from bed at 4 a. m. and arrested on a charge of polygamy made by her former husband, Harold Jones of Peabody, who declared she had failed to divorce him.

The charge was dismissed when Jones failed to press the complaint.

CRISIS PASSES IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Aug. 10 (AP)—The bodies of a Japanese naval officer and seaman, killed in a clash with Chinese guards at the entrance to the Hungjao military airdrome, were turned over to Japanese authorities today. This action caused an appreciable relaxation of the tension in this metropolis of China.

Chinese and Japanese officials worked vigorously to curb the mounting tension, and both announced they had agreed to settle the incident by diplomatic means in order not to aggravate the situation caused by a month of undeclared war between the two powers in north China.

Japanese Detachment Killed by Chinese

Peiping, Aug. 10 (AP)—Chinese sources reported today a Japanese army detachment had been wiped out in a battle with Chinese defenders of the Great Wall Pass at Nankow, 20 miles northeast of here.

The unconfirmed Chinese reports indicated a major engagement was being fought in the vicinity of Nankow with the reinforced Chinese divisions effectively defending their positions below the centuries-old wall from the advance of bring Charar province under its domination.

CIO Abandons Dam Strike Plan

Grand Coulee, Wash., Aug. 10 (AP)—CIO union members abandoned plans today for an immediate strike on Grand Coulee dam and decided on a campaign for public support.

The members voted to table the strike issue until after a verdict from the National Labor Relations Board on the dam labor controversy.

Girl Injured in Fall From "L" Car

Slipping from the step as she was about to board a Salem street car in Sullivan Square, Miss Lillian Cavino, 22, of College avenue, Medford, was treated for cuts and bruises at Haymarket Relief Hospital today.

She was released shortly after treatment.

TRIPLE GAS TRAGEDY STUNS FATHER OF 3

Lawrence, Aug. 10—Stoically, Santis De Blas, 36-year-old millworker, made arrangements today for the burial of his three children who were sacrificed in death because his divorced wife loved another man.

Police investigators, at least, have attributed a frustrated romance as the cause of the gas asphyxiation of the children—Raymond, 9; Mary, 10; Genevieve, 13.

DeBlas, himself, has nothing to say.

"How can I?" he wanted to know. "I haven't seen my wife for six months. How could I know what was in her mind?"

The wife, attractive, 32, blonde, lies in Lawrence General Hospital. She may die. She may live.

HER LIPS STILL SEALED

But her lips have been sealed for the 24 hours that have elapsed since the children were found dead in their beds and she was found unconscious on the floor at the kitchen door of a Willow street apartment.

The triple funeral of the DeBlas children will take place from the Holy Rosary Church tomorrow morning.

The three little bodies, meanwhile, lay in state at Sebatiano D'Amico's funeral parlor in Thomas street.

Crowds filed by all day long. A few knew the DeBlas family. Most of the "mourners" did not. Most of the "mourners" were just curious persons.

SEEK TO SOLVE DEATHS

Investigators, who wanted to write down a solution to the triple deaths, kept a telephone line open to the Lawrence General Hospital.

Whether Mrs. DeBlas' condition was getting better or worse was something no one wanted to say. If she should recover consciousness, however, police would be called.

The official theory on the tragedy now is that the divorced woman, not certain whether a Salem, N. H., man would be able to marry her, sought death for herself and her children.

That was based on the story of Albert E. Kelley, who told of Mrs. DeBlas leaving him "in a huff" following an auto ride when he told her he couldn't get a divorce from his estranged wife immediately.

Oughta be amusing, when they open up the thing again, to watch the faces of the lads and lasses of 6000 yrs. hence . . . Kinda far to wait, though, and it might even be tedious—living that long . . . The plan was thought up by Doc Thornwell Jacobs, prexy at Oglethorpe U., and it's to seal up a lot of XXth Cent. stuff in a stainless steel crypt in the Appalachian Mts. . . . Included will be recordings of the voices of Pres. Roosevelt, Mussolini, Stalin, the former King Edward, scientists, archeologists and historians, and the film, "A Star Is Born," because the good Doc. wouldn't want to pass up showing the descendant-boys Hollywood when the crypt is opened 6000 yrs. from now . . . Well, there are a lot of other pkgs. the prof could put in to give our coming cuzzins laffs—like Man Mountain Dean, a bottle of prohibition bathtub gin, the casting publicity for "Gone With the Wind," Dick Powell's mustache, a Sunday driver's brain, one of Babe Ruth's old-time tummy aches and the Philadelphia-cockney accent of Boake Carter . . .

Warner Film To Glorify Navy Aces

By HARRIET PARSONS

(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Aug. 10—Warner Brothers have always led the field when it comes to the production of service pictures—in other words stories with an authentic army or navy background.

Now Hal Wallis, Warner production chief, is planning a naval epic in Technicolor to be titled "Wings Over the Sea." The original story is being developed by Lawrence Kimball and Lloyd Bacon is slated to direct.

Harriet Parsons

Plan is to co-star George Brent and Wayne Morris. As the title suggests, "Wings Over the Sea" will have to do with the navy's seaplanes. Studio has just finished glorifying the underwater branch of the service in "Submarine D-1."

* * *

Joan Bennett, and not Shirley Ross as originally scheduled, will have the lead opposite Bob Hope in "Money From Home," which the Broadway musical comedy star will make for Paramount after he finishes "The Big Broadcast."

Joan, who has left for a summer stock engagement and a subsequent vacation, still owes Para a picture and this will be it. Reason for the switch is the fact that Shirley is needed for "Fly by Night," the Bing Crosby picture, and also for "Strange Fascination," George Raft's next.

* * *

Although he hasn't been handed any really outstanding assignments by Twent-Cent-Fox, Michael Whalen has been climbing steadily in popularity. Acting plums on the T-C-F lot have fallen to Tyrone Power and Don Ameche, yet Whalen's fan mail has quadrupled in the past year.

At the moment he's slated for the male lead in three pictures. In the first two, "Headline Huntress" and "Rings On Her Fingers," he'll share honors with Gloria Stuart. The third will be with Claire Trevor. And by the way, watch for Claire's dramatic portrayal in "Dead End."

* * *

Oliver Hinsdell, head of Paramount's acting school for young players, corralled eight prospects on his recent scouting tour. Five of the eight have just been handed contracts by Para. And three of these go immediately into DeMille's "Buccaneer." The three are: Dorothy Howe, who was a phone operator at M-G-M's exchange in Dallas; Jack Hubbard, son of a Chicago steel exec, and Margaret Randall, also from Chicago. Speaking of "Buccaneer," Margot Grahame is testing for the second femme lead opposite Fredric March and Francisca Gaal.

* * *

Line or Two: Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers leave next week for Cleveland, where they'll receive $30,000 for one week's engagement—probably the highest salary ever paid for personal appearances . . . Pan Berman is so anxious to get Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda for co-stars in "Having a Wonderful Time," he's willing to hold up production to fit in with their schedules. This wouldn't be the first screen duet for the once-married Maggie and Hank. They made "The Moon's Our Home" for Wanger.

Lionel Barrymore's leg is sufficiently improved to be taken out of a cast, and he'll go to England to play Bob Taylor's father in "A Yank at Oxford."

Barbara Stanwyck plays the title role and the above scene from the film shows her enthusiastically picturing the future as John Boles listens attentively.

NEW FILMS

The eagerly awaited "Knight Without Armor," which boasts one of the screen's most romantic teams, Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat, opens Friday at the Keith Memorial theater, where it will share program honors with "Super Sleuth," with Jack Oakie, Ann Sothern and Eduardo Ciannelli.

A special preview of "Knight Without Armor" will be given Thursday at 6:45 p. m., and again at 10:15 p. m.

"Knight Without Armor," written by James Hilton, author of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Lost Horizon," is said to be one of the greatest love stories. The exotic Dietrich portrays the picture's alluring Russian countess and Donat, the mystery knight errant whose hatred is transmuted into protective love as they live through a series of stirring adventures.

* * *

The fabulous Sam Goldwyn's latest dramatic triumph, "Stella Dallas," starring Barbara Stanwyck, John Boles and Anne Shirley, and Columbia's production "The Devil Is Driving," make up the new program opening at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters on Friday.

Richard Dix is starred in "The Devil Is Driving," companion feature.

Old Howard Opens On Aug. 21

Old Howard Theater, where "there is always something doing from 9:30 a. m. until 11:30 p. m." will reopen on Saturday, August 21, following complete renovation.

Coming attractions will be Ann Corio, Georgia Sothern, Hinda Wassau, Sunya "Smiles" Slane, Nora Ford, and many others. Among the comedians will be "Red" Marshall, Mike Sachs, Fred Binder, Billy Fields, Sam Raynor and others to be announced later.

Merry Farce on Cape

By PEGGY DOYLE

Dennis, Aug. 10—The busy Hacketts—they collaborated on the script for Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly," now unreeling at the Colonial Theater—last night provided several hours of broad farce and constant laughter at Raymond Moore's Cape Playhouse.

The occasion was the world premiere of their new comedy, "Western Union, Please," which assembled a capacity audience of summer visitors in the distinguished little playhouse.

Philip Huston

"Western Union, Please," is a folksy cross-section of the lives of the Daley family and not, as you may have expected, the autobiography of a telegram.

Evelyn Barden, who will be seen in Boston in the Theater Guild production of Ben Hecht's "To Quito and Back," is Mrs. Jennie Daley. She is a witty, brisk practical woman who has borne the household burdens since her never-do-well husband walked out on his responsibilities seven years before.

Other members of the family group are "Aunt Aurora" Neusbickle, a white-haired, fluttery creature whose deafness bars her from ever being a part of the lively and endless family discussions, and Alice Daley, the daughter of Jennie and the absent Danny Daley.

The fact that Aurora's deafness is made the cause for laughable misunderstandings seems to us to be in questionable taste. However, it must be admitted that last night's well-bred audience appeared in uncritical mood, laughing easily just when they were supposed to in the Frances Goodrich-Albert Hackett script.

Tired of bending over the hot stove baking blueberry pies for the community, Mrs. Daley is arranging to sell the family homestead. Alice, on the other hand, is reluctant to sign the papers that will force her to leave the home associated with pleasant, little-girl memories of a kind and adoring father.

Mr. Stoddard, who seeks to purchase the property, is urging the consummation of the sale when the arrival of a Western Union boy halts the proceedings.

The Western Union "Boy" is Danny Daley come home to roost, and the shame of it is, his good wife bemoans, wringing her hands, that he has sunk so low that he "is now taking jobs from little boys."

The scraggy, spindly-legged Mr. Daley, still wearing this Western Union boy uniform, exhibits his best "cat that ate the canary" expression at the final curtain.

Miss Varden is splendid as Mrs. Daley and Mabel Paige's Aurora amusing if you find ear-trumpets amusing. Martha Scott, the Alice Daley of the play, is excellent and so is Philip Huston, as her young man from New York, whose persuasive charm finally wins her away from the tricky Stoddard, played by Otto Hulett with everything but Desperate Desmond mustachios. Percy Kilbride's Danny Daley was adequate.

First-Nighters Flock to New Show at Cohasset

By BETTY ALDEN

THE PLAY entitled "Storm Over Patsy," which had its premiere with the South Shore Players in the Cohasset Town Hall last evening, proved to be a storm of laughter . . . Many actors have voiced the opinion that authors should leave animals out of their plays, for the four-footed thespians . . . cats, dogs, or other pets . . . usually perform some impromptu antics which steal the show . . .

LESLIE BLAKE

Patsy, a nondescript little canine actor whose off-stage name is Skippy, would give them plenty of material for this argument . . . He completely captivated the audience when he interrupted the stern atmosphere of a courtroom scene by sitting suddenly down on the rail of the witness box and indulging in a vigorous flea hunt . . . The gales of laughter from across the footlights then attracted his attention so that he cocked his head, first on one side, then the other, in a most quizzical manner . . . increasing the merriment so that the more experienced and accomplished actors had to wait long intervals before their lines could be heard . . .

Blanche Sweet and Raymond Hackett, who first became famous in the movies, have the leading roles in this week's play . . . which was attended by the regular audience of first nighters from the Cohasset summer colony . . . Some of the members of the players' group, who have appeared in previous productions this summer, were on the audience side of the footlights, getting the spectators' point of view . . . Jane Bancroft was sitting with her mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft . . . and Lois Hall, who was in the cast of Excursion two weeks ago with Jane, was also in the audience with her sister, Helen . . .

Mr. and Mrs. C. Bertram Currier were in a foursome with Jean Adams and her escort . . . Mrs. Currier's white gown had a wide sash of emerald green . . . and Miss Adams set off her becoming olive tan with a gown of wine colored crepe with a French blue sash . . . Mr. and Mrs. Royden Loring were in their accustomed seats, as were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Munroe and Mrs. Horace Drinkwater who, with her daughter, Mrs. William Ball Rice, and the latter's little girl, made a congenial three generation group . . .

* * *

Mimi Blake Attends With Sister, Leslie

ALL THE YOUNG HARVARDIANS were interested in seeing another winsome member of the Blake family . . . for Mimi, who has yet to make her debut, was present with her popular sister, Leslie . . . Mimi wore a bolero frock of printed pique and seems to have all the style, as well as personality and charm, that has made Leslie so popular.

Eleanor Van Kleeck had a front row seat with her boy friend . . . while Mrs. Philip Benson sat nearby to watch the play . . . and others present were Mr. Harry Long, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. Malcolm B. French, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Cumner, Mrs. William Emerson Barrett, Mrs. A. O. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prouty and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Menard . . .

The Menard family is temporarily rather depleted while the young folks devote their attention to the races at Marblehead . . . Cornelia, the debutante of the family, is staying with friends in Marblehead, and the boys are bunking at the Corinthian Yacht Club where they can keep close watch over their boat . . .

Annual Sports Week at Buzzards Bay

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL WEEK at Buzzards Bay, from August 30 through Labor Day, will wind up the social and sporting season of upper Cape Cod . . . This annual program of land and sea sports, in which a great many socialites of Pocasset, Buzzards Bay, Wings Neck and neighboring resorts participate, is sponsored for the benefit of the hospital . . . it was originally the brain child of Mrs. John Hallowell and Mrs. Francis A. Harding . . . they ran it very successfully for a number of seasons but during the depression years it was discontinued . . . In 1935, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker revived an interest in the week of sports, so that once again it is an annual feature . . .

The program includes tennis and golf tournaments, water sports and boat races . . . and the hospital benefits from the entry fee which is charged for each event, as well as from the sale of ice cream, tonic, cigarettes and balloons at the big picnic which will be held on Friday, September 3, at Wings Neck . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker are co-chairmen of the committee which also includes Louise Harding, who is in charge of arrangements for the tennis tournaments, Mrs. U. Haskell Crocker in charge of the picnic, Kitty Fiske and her brother, Augustus Fiske, Jr., in charge of the boat races, and Mrs. Robert T. Young in charge of golf . . .

Jane Frothingham to Wed Soon

When a couple visits the bureau of vital statistics to declare marriage intentions, that little old matchmaker Dan Cupid sits back in his swivel chair and considers his job practically done . . . He has only to dip his pen in the ink and enter the date of the wedding in his ledger . . . But in the case of Jane Frothingham and John Brooks Hawkins, who filed their intentions in Cambridge yesterday, he will have to pause in his bookkeeping . . . for Miss Frothingham is not making public the date of her day of days for a while longer . . . The plans are all complete but she just isn't telling . . .

Miss Frothingham, who is the daughter of Francis E. Frothingham of Cambridge, is a graduate of the May School and also studied in Europe . . . Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. Hawkins of Worcester . . . He graduated from Harvard with the class of 1936 and is a student at the Episcopal Theological School . . .

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Vallendar of Brookline and Buzzards Bay, left for New York yesterday on the first leg of a cruise to Bermuda and the Saguenay River . . . They are accompanied by their son, Dr. Charles Vallendar, Jr. . . . Evelyn Weatherby returned from California by motor just in time to bid the party bon voyage . . . Evie and her family have been on a trip to the West Coast since the middle of June . . .

DEB JOINS RACE FANS AT MARBLEHEAD

WHILE EVERYONE is discussing yachts and yachting at Marblehead's Race Week, the photographer caught Virginia Ramsay on the dock at the Corinthian Yacht Club, waiting for an opportunity to put in her oar. Miss Ramsay has been in the racing competition aboard the Nancy Lee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsay of Marblehead Neck and will be presented to society in Boston this autumn.

Guild of Infant Saviour Plans Busy Fall Season

Waning summer days offer an opportunity for Guild of Infant Saviour members to relax before the hectic whirl of fall activities.

A gala supper dance, a colorful county fair and numerous informal parties have been crammed into the autumn calendar which opens with a meeting on Tuesday, October fifth, at the Copley-Plaza. Mrs. Andrew J. Porter resumes her position as head of this charitable organization.

The fall supper dance, slated for November fifth, at the Copley-Plaza, will be chairmaned by Mrs. William J. Drummey.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Assisting on the committee is Mrs. P. A. O'Connell, who has been registered at the New Ocean House in Swampscott and is motoring shortly to Wianno to join the summer colony for the remainder of the season. Others are Mrs. Norbert J. Reilly, a former president of the Guild, Mrs. Russell F. Riley, Mrs. Frederic J. Crosby and Mrs. Andrew J. Porter.

On November 16, the Copley-Plaza ballroom will be converted into a county fair with garlands of autumnal fruits, and clusters of bright-hued leaves furnishing the decorative keynote of the benefit.

As usual a round of informal affairs has been planned to boost the returns on the bazaar. Mrs. John W. Gahan of Medford, newly appointed chairman of the flower table, is sponsoring a lecture by Rev. Terence Connolly, S. J., on October 22. Mrs. P. F. Gahan is opening her home for the benefit.

Also benefitting the flower table is the morning lecture which Mrs. M. L. Ryan of Chestnut Hill, who is summering at Marblehead, will have at her home on October 14.

MRS. FALLON HOSTESS

Although the date has not been decided, Mrs. Joseph F. Fallon of Brookline will be hostess at a bridge at her home to aid the bridge undertaking, another feature of the bazaar. Assisting her as chairman is Mrs. C. F. Bowen.

Also opening their homes for benefits during the late fall season are Mrs. William F. McDermott and Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, two former presidents of the Guild.

Rounding out the summer season at their shore homes are Miss Mary Corcoran, a charter member of the Guild and its treasurer, who is stationed at North Scituate and Mrs. Joseph P. Carney, who has made Craigville her summer headquarters.

Mrs. M. H. Hintlian, a former president of the Winchester Chapter, is sojourning at Rockport and Mrs. James F. Gaffney of Winchester is summering close by at her home on Plum Island.

Travelling abroad are Mrs. Harold J. Fitzgibbons, who is accompanied by her daughter and Mrs. James J. Regan's husband is accompanying her on her continental jaunt.

Just returned from delightful European trips are Mrs. Russell F. Riley, the former Aileen Crimmings, who has taken a home at Falmouth for the remainder of the season and Mrs. James J. Ahearn, publicity chairman of the Guild, who is now making Harwichport her summer home.

Mrs. Francis J. Barnes of Cambridge is planning a trip to California, which Mrs. James P. O'Hare has also chosen as the destination of her summer traveling. Meanwhile the latter is sunning at North Scituate.

Plans Milton Wedding

The wedding of Anna Tillinghast Rogerson (Mrs. Edward G.) to Tappan E. Francis, will take place at noon, August 20, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tillinghast, Brush Hill road, Milton.

It will be a quiet home wedding with only members of the bride's and groom's families in attendance. After their honeymoon the couple will be at home at 41 Allerton street, Brookline.

Mrs. Rogerson, whose first husband was the late Edward G. Rogerson, is a graduate of Milton Academy. She has a daughter, Barbara.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

ROLL EXERCISES FOR SLIM HIPS

By IDA JEAN KAIN

OF ALL the lazy weather exercises, rolling tops the list for slimming off the inches, and it's as easy as rolling off a log.

What's more, rolling concentrates on the problem measurement of the feminine figure, the hipline, so effectively that it is possible to lose one and one-half inches in six weeks' time.

Rolling used to mean that you threw yourself full length on the floor and went over and over, with a reckless disregard of elbows and furniture. It looked strenous, but was in reality a lot of lost motion. The new rolling exercises are less difficult and much more effective.

Put a pillow behind your back and prop yourself up on your elbows for this hip-slimming roll:

POSITION: Propped up on elbows in a half-sitting position, ankles intertwined.

MOVEMENT: Roll from the waist, over on the right hip, then back over on the left hip. As time goes on, you should find it easier to roll further over on the sides—but take it easy! Do not try to roll any farther than you can without moving the upper part of the body. This exercise is splendid for the waistline muscles.

I hope I haven't misled you. These rolling exercises are not quite as easy as rolling off a log, and the following exercise is particularly difficult. However it flattens the abdomen while slimming the hips, which makes it worth while.

POSITION: Lie flat on the back, arms straight out from the sides, feet together and straight up in the air. Try, eventually, to hold the knees perfectly straight and the soles of the feet horizontal . . . but that will come with practice and flexibilty.

MOVEMENT: Keeping arms out at the sides and feet together, twist at the waist and try to lower legs to the left side. Return to upright position and lower to right. Relax, rest, and try again. This exercise is particularly good for remolding the line from hip to thigh.

Since it is summer, you are not likely to over-exert yourself, but if you like, make your goal twenty-five times for each exercise. You can be as slow as you like, but do the exercises daily if you wish to slim down in the hipline.

Write for the complete set of "Rolling Exercises" which help you to conserve your energy while whittling down your hipline. Enclose a stamped, addressed envelope for the leaflet, and address your request to Miss Ida Jean Kain, in care of this paper.

Make Use Of Bidding Tips

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Information derived from the bidding is often of great value in the play of the cards.

In today's hand South made use of a defensive bid to guide him in the play of the trump suit.

North-South vulnerable.

North:
♠ Q 6 5 2
♡ Q J 8 4
◇ A 10
♣ A 10 6

West:
♠ A J 10 9
♡ 6 5 3 2
◇ 9 7 4
♣ J 2

East:
♡ 10 9
◇ K 8 3 2
♣ K Q 9 8 7 4 3

South:
♠ K 8 7 4 3
♡ A K 7
◇ Q J 6 5
♣ 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	4 ♣
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's pass to four spades is noteworthy. Despite his partner's bid, West did not feel that there was a great chance of slaughtering the four spade contract.

The opening lead was the Jack of clubs, taken by dummy's Ace. Declarer saw that he could afford to lose two trump tricks and a diamond and, therefore, needed only to take precautions against the loss of three trump tricks.

South entered his own hand with the Ace of hearts, in order to lead the first trump.

His precautions were rewarded when West played a low spade and East discarded a club, on dummy's Queen of spades. South's troubles were not yet over, however, since it was still extremely difficult to prevent West from making all three of his remaining trumps.

South returned to his own hand by means of his King of hearts, to take the diamond finesse. East won with the King of diamonds and returned a club, South ruffing. A low heart was led to dummy's Queen and the Ace of diamonds was cashed. South then trumped dummy's last heart and led the Jack of diamonds.

With all hands then down to three cards, South's were the King and a low trump and a diamond; West's were the A-J-10 of trumps. South led his diamond and West was obliged to trump. He then had to permit South to make a trump trick with his King, for the success of the contract.

Banish Shiny Nose Effect

THE SPOTLIGHT of the day has a way of centering, it seems, on every female's shiny nose!

Running around town like a mouse tracking down trifles for you to pass upon I found a no-shine lotion that is the special love of a famous Fifth avenue salon! The best insurance against shiny nose we know of—perfect, harmless even to the most sensitive skin.

A summer need—it's a colorless, odorless liquid and you simply apply one drop with the tips of the fingers, smoothing it into the skin. You will achieve that dull, mat finish. Comes in a dollar size and should be enough to go a whole season.

As I cannot give trade names in my column, just phone Liberty 4000 or write me, enclosing a self-addressed envelope, and the name of this summer need, also store where it may be purchased will gladly be given you.

Society Notes

FESTIVITIES in Newport seem to be continuing at a high pitch, regardless of the fact that the America Cup Races, the climax of the season, are over. This past week end Mr. and Mrs. Eben S. Draper of Boston entertained Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Eliot as their house guests, while the Roger Cutlers had Edward M. McIlvain as guest at their villa. Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons is visiting Mrs. E. Parents Who Claim to Be Paragons of Virtue Amuse Children

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One of the most tragic things in this world is the passionate desire of many parents to be looked up to and admired by their children.

That's why so often Father pontificates on his early virtues and Mother is given to murmuring, "When I was a girl we didn't do things like this or that."

Of course, children can see through the bluff as though it were daylight. Pa and Ma are fooling no one, save themselves. For it doesn't require much intelligence to know that conduct that today would be considered perfectly right and proper would be "absolutely scandalous" 30 years ago.

An interesting letter from a son of these "paragon" parents is this which I received this morning from Worcester:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"In his way Dad is all right. He's a little given to proclaiming what a perfect husband and father he has been, but the thing that gets my goat is the way he boosts his generation over mine.

"Dad is 57, which is almost two generations ahead of an 18-year-old son who graduated from high school this June, but I'm sure sick of hearing what he and his boy chums did that my brother and I don't do.

"I haven't been able to earn any money so far, because it took all my time to study, to pass my examinations and graduate. But I'm trying to get a job every day.

"Dad tells me how he used to chop wood and earn money when he was 18, but as we live in an apartment house in a big city, I don't see where I could get wood to chop, unless I started in on the park trees.

"Also, he didn't smoke. I haven't any money to buy cigarettes, but I take one if it's offered me.

"Dad's brother told me he used to smoke tea and coffee in a clay pipe. He was never sassy; he never dodged going to church. I look at his shoulder-blades sometimes to see if there are any wing stumps there, but I haven't been able to find them.

"FRANK."

Dear Son:

Mother and Dad have done the best they can for you by sending you through high school. Please try to remember that.

In later years, when you have really grown up and possibly have children of your own, you'll undoubtedly paint yourself as a model boy of your generation.

I agree that your dad's attitude is difficult. Yet you ought to be able to tolerate it. You should see some of the fathers of the girls and boys who write their confidences to me.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was invited to their home down at the beach to spend a week-end. Everyone was so nice to me, especially the girl's mother, and I'd like to send her a present, if it didn't look as if I were rushing things. I'd like to rush things, because I'm in love with the girl, but I don't want to make myself ridiculous. What would you suggest? I'd like to go the limit.

IN EARNEST.

DEAR FRIEND:

Don't go the limit after the first visit. Better confine your enthusiasm to a box of candy or a basket of fruit, with the nicest "bread-and-butter" letter you can write. If you're invited again, you can plunge a little harder. Good luck.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Couples danced by, hilarious with champagne. The orchestra played divinely. Le Chateau de la Marquise was the last word in elegance and beauty.

"I go now to move among my guests." Niklas rose. "You, Lou, come also. You will answer their questions, with discretion, about our leading lady. And"—his eyes narrowed in stealthy warning—"you will be guarded, you will not overdo it."

On the dance floor, Harriet Brewster swept by in the arms of a partner. She was of medium height, and rather squarely built.

Under her black brows, her champagne colored eyes flicked Toni from silver slippers to the absurd hat on her snowy curls. She passed a second time. Her stare was more prolonged, keenly appraising. It was almost rude. "As though I was a figure in a wax works!" thought Toni. But she knew it was folly to resent it.

She must expect this sort of thing. Indeed, it was a kind of compliment, professionally speking.

One must get used to it. One must.

The music stopped. More people were presented to her.

Near the club's entrance, at one end of the imitation "garden" and running almost the whole breadth of it, was a long bar. Harriet Brewster had joined the throng there with her partner.

The crowd was still so thick upon the dance floor that the man's face was not yet visible to Toni, but a thrilling premonition came to her.

Her heart beat fast with excitement.

Then Niklas's voice: "Marquise, may I present Mr. Halstead-Flagg? This"—with a ring of triumph—"is our star, sir."

"May I sit down?"

"Do, please." As she set her glass upon the table, her hand shook so that some of the champagne spattered on the cloth. She hoped he did not notice it.

At a sign from Niklas, Monsieur Alphonse rose, bowed, and excused himself. Niklas crossed to the bar, to Miss Brewster. Guy Halstead-Flagg and Toni were left alone.

"May I congratulate you on your beautiful voice?"

He had, she thought, a charming voice, too. Resonant. Deep and yet gentle. It caressed one.

"Thank you. I am glad you liked it."

She was nervous as a schoolgirl.

"Your rendition of the song was perfect." He was looking directly at her. Unsmiling. It was a penetrating regard. "Also, your accent."

Accent. Why had he added that?—she wondered.

A CHALLENGE!

She was supposed to be French. An aristocrat. Naturally, one would assume that anyone with the rank of marquise would at least speak her native tongue perfectly.

"Did you," she asked, returning his look with a cool, half-bantering smile "expect me to have a patois?" Her eyes met his directly, and held them for a long moment.

It was, he thought, more than a rebuke. A challenge. His interest increased.

Despite her bizarre make-up and the towering white wig, Guy Halstead-Flagg had recognized Toni immediately as the girl who had sat alone that night in the New Gallic Casino, the girl who had lunched with the notorious Niklas and his high-powered publicity man only a few weeks before at the Ritz-Carlton.

Moreover, he had observed her stumble on her last appearance in the revue. He had gone to the New Gallic Casino the next night, impelled by a premonition that she might have been fired for that single instance of awkwardness.

His surmise was presumably correct. The tall, slim beauty was gone.

And here she was as the foreign star of a new night club, exhibiting an amazing talent. She had sung as one inspired.

"You are a good actress." He spoke very deliberately, choosing his words.

Surely, she thought, they had a veiled meaning. Or was it merely her nervous imagination?

"I have to be one." She picked up her fan from the table. A perfumed trifle of painted gauze. She waved it with seeming nonchalance, staring ahead of her, half smiling.

"Doubtless," he replied.

A TOAST

They were fencing. Instinctively she realized it.

"Will you have a glass of champagne?"

"Thank you. And you?" He lifted the gold-labeled bottle.

"Please. Just a little." She needed fortifying.

He filled her glass and one for himself.

"Let us drink," he suggested, "to your putting it over, marquise. That is the correct toast, is it not?"

"No." She set her glass down. "Monsieur, I do not like the expression, 'putting it over!'"

"So our American slang is displeasing to you?" He shrugged. "Forgive me. I drink, then, to your grand success! That is better?"

"Certainement."

They drank.

"You remind me," he said slowly, "of some one. From the moment you appeared on the balcony, I had that impression."

"Indeed? Monsieur, that is no compliment. Unless she was verree beautiful?" She smiled at him with deliberate coquetry. Their eyes challenged.

"Not nearly as lovely as you are—now." The last word seemed an afterthought.

Yet Toni knew it had some purpose. Had he recognized her as the showgirl in the New Gallic Casino?—she wondered. Or, farther back, when their gaze had met in that shaft of light?

OR WAS HE?

But, even so, there was nothing, surely, of which to be afraid. He was no enemy. Or was he?

Why would he bait her, even if he had guessed her subterfuge?

Had he guessed it?—she wondered.

Even if she had appeared in the revue of the New Gallic Casino, she could still be the French blueblood, forced to earn her livelihood in newer, more profitable worlds. She would stick to Lou Steiner's story. Play her part to the limit. Defy this man whom she now felt she hated.

"Paint and powder do many things to a woman," she told him.

"To the soul, perhaps, also?"

What an extraordinary remark!

"The soul," she said deliberately, "is what you call an outworn commodity in America, demodee. You have no room for the soul in your mad chase for money!"

"Then why are you here?" he challenged, grinning. "Madame la Marquise."

But he knew she was inwardly seething when she said coldly: "For your wicked dollars. What else would bring me to this mad city?"

There was a tense pause.

"You think me rude, perhaps?"

She shrugged. "I have no particular thoughts about you, monsieur," she forced herself to answer, "except the happy reflection that in France, the gentlemen"—she emphasized the word mockingly—"show more finesse in addressing the ladies."

The barb went home.

Under his tanned skin, Guy Halstead-Flagg reddened. He had asked for it, and he had got it.

He longed to shake her, and yet she had a devilish attraction.

"THE MONA LISA?"

"When I said you reminded me of some one," he told her, faltering a little and annoyed at his confusion, "it was a painting—let me see—in the Louvre, I think."

"The Mona Lisa?" Her lovely lips curled. "Always when the gentlemen do not understand everything about a woman, they call her the Mona Lisa," she mocked him.

"Granted."

"With a leetle mystery we are nothing! The fisherman grows bored—ennuye—when he sees clear to the bottom of the pool!"

"It is charming of you to create the mystery," he said shortly, keenly watching her face. She was an enigma. Or was she? She was putting on an act to earn a living.

And such a living! He thought of his young brother, Randy, dead these past three years. A girl like this one—lovely, talented, and wicked, had destroyed him. Were he a Samson, he would tear down this night club and all it represented!

"I am no mystery. I am what I am."

Fur Sweaters and Blonde Tweeds—New Suit Notes

By ANNICE BRINK

PANAMANIAN colors, rich and sun-beaten to mellowness, are going to provide striking contrast for "blonde tones" . . . and between the two, fashion honors will be pretty evenly divided!

We're speaking of the fascinating array of fall suits and casual coats for the gay, heady out-of-door time which New England loves best . . . for the first football game on an Indian summer afternoon . . . for watching your friends rake the sky at a skeet-shoot. In an out of town or country!

There's black and grey for town, and with the, cachet of newness in a three-piece suit is a fur sweater! Actually, it is a vest or short jacket with a fur front that gives the effect of a tight-fitting sweater or weskit.

• • •

Masses of light fur, blonde tweeds with nubbed surfaces, or long, diagonal pencilings, blonde woolens with rich brown furs for contrast . . . all of these will be around to set off your own particular type of female beauty.

Backs that aren't fitted will be but slightly "swaggered." Interesting things will be done with flared gores, inset pleats, reversed umbrella pleats. And not a coat but will have its individual back treatment.

FOR SHOPPING information on any fall coats, suits or hats illustrated, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

TRY OUT 'Iced COFFEE Mexican'

By MARTHA LEE

Pour any coffee left over from breakfast into the freezing tray of your automatic refrigerator and allow it to freeze solid. These cubes can be used for iced coffee to cut down the dilution of flavor. Or they may be used for a delightfully flavored milk shake. Merely shake the coffee cubes in a beverage shaker with milk and simple syrup or sugar and thereby produce a most satisfying and nourishing drink.

Have you tried Iced Coffee Mexican? Perhaps you'd like to try it for a change. Here's how—

Before serving add to each quart (4 cups) coffee 6 tablespoons superfine powdered sugar and 3 teaspoons vanilla. Stir well to completely dissolve sugar. Pour into glasses over cracked ice and serve.

A tall glass of iced coffee and a slice of delicious cake seems to be a most satisfying combination. We have been requested to repeat in this column a recipe for Banana Layer Cake, which we recommended as being foolproof for the bride. We hope you like it as well as those who have tried it.

BANANA LAYER CAKE

½ cup triple-creamed shortening
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
2 cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk
1 large banana, sliced

Combine shortening, salt and lemon rind. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

Sift flour and baking powder together 3 times. Add small amount of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into two 8-inch layer pans greased and floured. Bake in moderately hot over (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes.

Spread creamy banana frosting on one layer and arrange banana slices on top. Place second layer on top and spread frosting on top and sides of cake.

CREAMY BANANA FROSTING

2 tablespoons triple-creamed shortening
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar.
1 large banana, mashed
3 tablespoons scalded cream (about)

Combine shortening, butter, salt and grated lemon rind, and blend. Add ½ cup sugar gradually, creaming well. Add mashed banana and blend. Add remaining sugar, alternately with cream, beating until smooth and creamy and stiff enough to spread. Like all frostings made in this manner, this keeps beautifully fresh. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 8-inch layers.

BANANA CAKE

½ cup triple-creamed shortening
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup mashed bananas 2 or 3 bananas
¼ cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 cups sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup heavy cream, whipped and sweetened
3 bananas, sliced

Sift flour, measure and sift twice with baking powder and soda. Mash bananas through a sieve, measure and add sour milk. Combine shortening, salt and vanilla; add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy; add eggs and beat well. Then add dry ingredients alternately with combined milk and bananas. Pour into greased and floured 9-inch layer pans and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 30 minutes, or until cake is done. Cool. Put cool layers together with whipped cream and sliced bananas. Spread whipped cream over top of cake and garnish with sliced bananas.

JESTS REIGN AT MADGE'S DINNER

CHAPTER 376

I STARTED vehemently at Harry Underwood's murmured admonition, "Don't go back so far, Lady Fair!"

It had taken him years to beat back to honor and an open life again, years when his connections with the underworld had been turned to good account in serving his country, years when he had lived a hunted and furtive life.

"Thank you," I said softly and meaningly, and struck into the conversation at the other end of the table with forced gayety covering a genuine thankfulness for their absorption in their own colloquy.

"How many nations have had their fates settled in the last quarter of an hour?" I asked.

"You heard her the first time," Harry Underwood said severely, "but if you have to have it in language you can understand, I'll oblige you. What are you telling those girls to glue their eyes and ears to you, while the Lady Fair and I have been eating our hearts out at this end of the table because we're so neglected."

MADGE DISTURBED

"Yes, we can see your chins quivering from here," Dicky retorted. "But we'll take pity on you and satisfy your maudlin curiosity. I was telling my mother of the prowess of her grandsons, and their rivalry for the favor of that fascinating young damsel, Betty Gibbs. And Lil, being an incurable romantic, was also eating it up."

"Well! why leave me out?" Harry Underwood said plaintively. "I'm an incurable romantic, too. Ask the Lady Fair if I'm not."

TELLS ABOUT KIDS

"Why ask her?" he demanded with burlesqued truculence. "Ask me. I've been on the point of running you through any time this last hundred years. But me and Lil, we're noble souls. We'll forgive you. I'll even repeat the dope I've been spilling about the kids."

"Stop being funny," she said. "I'm in stitches now. I'd love to hear more about the boys, but I've got to give my laughter muscles a rest. Talk about the weather for a while, until I can breathe again. Then you can resume your job as a raconteur."

"The only trouble with this crowd," Dicky retorted, frowning portentously, "is that my talents are wasted on them. What say we adjourn to the living room? I see that the last batch of pancakes is going begging, and that means breakfast is officially over. And Harry and I must get going for the city."

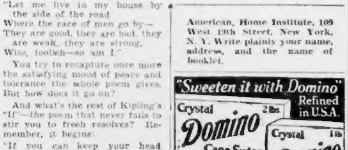
Beloved Poems Bring Cheer



'Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.'

A bit of Sam Walter Foss's "House by the Side of tha Road" drifts through your mind.

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by—
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish—so am I."

You try to recapture once more the satisfying mood of peace and tolerance the whole poem gives. But how does it go on?

And what's the rest of Kipling's "If"—the poem that never fails to stir you to fresh resolves? Remember, it begins:

"If you can keep your head when all about you

Zero Tuna Boys Envy 1st Catch Of Swordfish

The fishing harmony boys (green-eyed because they haven't landed a tuna so far this season) are sending Ben Davis Crowninshield of Boston and Marblehead a message of congrats to celebrate his landing a 124-pound swordfish, first of the season, off Louisburg, at Cape Breton, N. S., this week.

Signed by Paul Bauer, Bill Rice, Dana Chapman and Warren Raymond of Chapman's tackle shop; Asa Osborn and John Worthington, the message addressed to Crowninshield and Kip Farrington, New York sporting life author and companion on the trip, reads:

"Congratulations to Ben on the broadbill. How about the book you were writing? We need it to learn how to hook the big honkers at Provincetown. Or maybe you need it yourselves now."

Which, of course, is in the nature of sour grapes, since Raymond's and Bauer's trips to Provincetown this season have netted them approximately 0 tuna or swordfish.

* * *

FLYING TO TRURO

Paul Bauer, however, is planning to fly down to Truro this week-end, for a combined fish and field frolic, with a crowd there.

They will fish one day or so, and run the dogs in field trials for partridge part of the time.

* * *

* * *

Another point where the stripers are still striking is around Falmouth. John West took a three-pound striper there, off Akapeskat.

SHARK HOOKED

Not so fortunate were the members of a party cruising off Rock Island with Julian Crandall of Rhode Island. Included in the group were Arthur O'Brien, Malden; Charles Murray, Old Orchard, Me., and Brainerd Kenning, Roslindale.

After school tuna, they failed to get a strike, in waters that normally should be teeming with the little honkers.

However, friends in a nearby boat hooked a hammerhead shark—not very high in the fishing hierarchy, but a fighting thrill for awhile.

* * *

Heat seems to have spoiled the inland lake and stream fishing, for trout, bass and pickerel.

* * *

A testimonial shoot and field day will be held Sunday, beginning at 10 a. m., at the Fin, Fur and Feather Club, Natick, honoring the veteran sportsman and trapshooter, Dr. Hugh Williams of Boston.

Dr. Williams has been an ardent skeet shot ever since the sport took hold. A large crowd from throughout the state is expected.

Berkshire Bandit Escapes; Police Shot Kills Pal

Pittsfield, Aug. 10 (INS)—While his companion, Adam Stockley, 26, died at St. Luke's Hospital with a police bullet in the head, authorities today hunted a youth who they said drove a stolen automobile at break-neck speed through the Berkshire Hills, into New York State and back again to Richmond, fleeing when the car became mired in a farmyard.

The automobile, owned by State Trooper Robert Murphy, of the Lee barracks, was stolen from in front of a doctor's office.

Pittsfield Patrolman Joseph Monteleone spied the automobile, commandeered another car and gave chase at a 60-mile-an-hour clip. He fired shots at the gasoline tank and tires. One shot pierced the rear window, striking Stockley in the head.

Or Possibly: 'Gone With the Wheeze!'

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The first law of nature is to pay the campaign expenses by selling a souvenir book at the National Convention.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans did that little publishing gadget. We have both books at home as complete proof that politics makes strange collaborators.

We can't see why the Republicans are pointing the unmanicured finger of scorn at the Democrats. While the Democrats didn't write "Gone With the Wind" they did turn in another weather report. The title of their book was, "Just a Breeze."

Mr. Sopwith might take a hint from the Republicans and suppress his desire to write his biography, "How I Finished Second."

2 Airmen Killed In London 'Raid'

London, Aug. 10 (AP)—Despite the death of two airmen, officials announced today that London had successfully demonstrated her power to resist a mass air raid.

The two men were killed when their plane crashed near the city during last night's maneuvers.

One hundred and seventy-two bombing planes flew in from the west to attack London, the nerve center of England's defenses. Two hundred and twenty-two combat ships roared off to meet them. The maneuvers were the greatest of the kind in the history of the city.

Two Hours Ashore at Provincetown

This picture of Mrs. Gertrude Gould and her daughter, Beatrice, both of Webster street, Malden, wins today's $10 prize in the Boston Evening American's mother-and-daughter photograph contest. Similar prizes of $10 each will be given each day this week.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER PHOTOS BRING CASH

Mother love, a most vital factor in the love of everybody, is perhaps best typified in the bond that exists between daughter and mother. To perpetuate that love it is a common practice for mothers and daughters to be photographed together.

In addition to the cash first prize there will be awarded each day for the five next best pictures a pair of tickets to the showing of "Stella Dallas" at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, which starts next Friday.

Today's lucky winner is Beatrice T. Gould of 2 Webster street, Malden, who submitted a picture of herself taken with her mother Mrs. Gertrude Gould, of the same address. This picture was taken in Revere a month ago.

Photographs do not have to be ornate or expensive. Simplicity and ease of reproduction are the main factors.

To enter the contest, simply send the picture, a snapshot or otherwise, to the Stella Dallas Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

In Stella Dallas, Samuel Goldwyn presents a story of mother sacrifice which brings to the screen a vivid portrayal of a parent and her little girl parted by social barriers. Barbara Stanwyck and Anne Shirley bring new life to the famous story, so familiar to many of the older generation.

BROADCASTS TREND OF NEW PARIS GOWNS

Special to Boston Evening American

New York, Aug. 10—The new Paris gowns fit like the paper on the wall. They make a woman look as if she had been poured into them. They have no belt and flow with a continuous form-fitting mold that outlines the entire figure, accenting the bosom.

So said Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar, in her broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company-Blue Network from Paris.

"The newest thing in street clothes," she said, "is the long, tight jacket, that comes down over the hips, that fits tightly and molds to the figure like a corset. This is not the only type of coat. There are dozens of charming suits with short jackets, with little blouses of contrasting color. There are some square sporty, reefer jackets.

"There are also many capes, usually finger-tip length, of fur that button neatly about the shoulder so that they are practical for the American winter. Plaids are a big hit everywhere, particularly big, bold, horse-blanket plaids in queer pinks, grays, yellow, purples and pastels. There are dresses of plaid and slippers with plaid trimming. And newest of all plaid berets.

"This is a fur year and furs will be worn from morning till night. Besides fur boleros for day, there are finger-tip length fur coats and cloth coats with masses of silver fox. There are fur gloves, fur hats and fur trimmings. The most popular day furs are silver fox, Persian lamb, beaver, Alaska sealskin and mink. Another surprise is moleskin dyed green or dark blue and an inexpensive sheep-skin dyed dark colors. Fur coats for evening of mink or summer ermine are beltd with sashes around the waist.

"There is no change in the length of skirts for day. They will not be shorter. Evening skirts will be ankle-length or touching. There are very few short evening skirts.

"The page-boy haircut is giving way to a newer style. Hair is going to be off the neck and concentrated on the back of the head in tiny curls. The important thing is to have the head look as small as possible."

F. W. ELDRIDGE, EDITOR, DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Aug. 10 (INS)—Frederick W. Eldridge, veteran newspaper editor, was dead here today of a complication of ailments following a general breakdown three weeks ago.

He was successively managing editor, editor and vice-president of the Los Angeles Examiner, and after that was supervising editor for all Hearst newspapers on the Pacific coast.

He came to Los Angeles in 1908 as managing editor of the Los Angeles Examiner.

He rose to head that paper, and later became editor of all Hearst morning papers on the coast. In the later years of his life he served in an advisory capacity for the entire Hearst chain of newspapers.

Besides his newspaper work, Eldridge was a gifted writer, the author of many short stories and two plays, "The Eternal Triangle" and "Social Cockatrice."

He is survived by his second wife, Florence Lawrence Eldridge, former drama editor of the Examiner, whom he married three years ago.

NEW U. S. Financing STUDIED

$1,000,000,000 PROGRAM

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 10—A new federal financing program, entailing the borrowing of more than $1,000,000,000, was studied today by Treasury officials. Fiscal spokesmen indicated the current foreign political disturbances will necessitate continuation of the policy of maintaining a large cash reserve.

The money would be used for the protection of American interests abroad. Last year, the treasury maintained between $750,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 in its cash balance for this purpose. During the spring, this fund was allowed to diminish because of heavy federal expenditures, but since June the government has kept its cash margin well above $1,000,000,000.

While no definite figure has been determined, it is likely the treasury will borrow at least $400,000,000 through issuance of short term securities. The program is scheduled for September at which time the government also must refinance $817,483,000 of maturing notes and pay off in cash $350,000,000 of maturing bills.

If the administration decides to keep treasury cash reserves well above the $1,000,000,000 mark it may be forced to float a larger issue. In addition, the treasury could continue its current $100,000,000 weekly bill issues. Through its weekly offering the treasury borrows money at low interest rates and repays it within a year.

* * *

An analysis of Treasury figures revealed that so far this fiscal year, beginning July 1, federal revenues are 37 per cent higher than in 1936. Between July 1 and September 15, the date for the contemplated financing operation, revenues are expected to total $1,105,000,000 on the basis of present trends. During the same period last year collections were $831,000,000.

Federal spending since July 1 showed an increase of 28 per cent except in relief outlays, which were smaller than a year ago. Officials hope the disbursements for regular government functions will be reduced materially over the next few months in line with President Roosevelt's economy order.

Retrenchment already has been evidenced in the expenditures for the regular government departments and agencies. During the first week of this month, departmental outlays amounted to $6,970,000, a reduction of $5,000,000 under the same week in 1936.

In September the Treasury will be aided by the third-quarter income tax payments which are expected to yield $525,000,000. While this money, coupled with new borrowings, would appear to provide the government with a comfortable margin of cash, the Treasury must be prepared for any sudden increase in gold imports.

In recent weeks, the movement of gold from Europe to the United States has slowed to less than $30,000,000 a week. Officials said conditions were still uncertain and fresh floods of the metal might pour in at any time.

U. S. Steel Shipments Decrease

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—Shipments of finished products by the United States Steel Corporation in July amounted to 1,186,752 tons, a decrease of 81,798 tons from 1,268,550 in June.

In July last year shipments were the largest for any similar month since 1929.

For the first seven months shipments were 8,801,026 tons, an increase of 2,818,825 tons, or 47 per cent over the shipments for the comparable period of 1936.

Living Costs Up 0.9 P. C. in Quarter

Secretary of Labor Perkins announced that living costs for families of wage earners and lower-salaried workers in 32 large cities increased 0.9 per cent during the quarter ended June 15.

This reflected a rise in each of the groups of items included in the family budget, with the exception of fuel and light.

New York Central July Net Lower

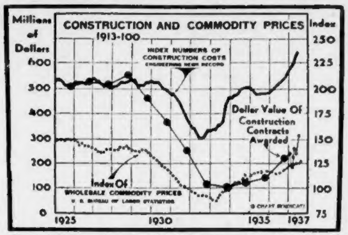
Contributing factors included a much larger maintenance program than a year ago and some slackening in the trend of freight traffic. Net income in July 1936 was $1,049,692.

Construction Contracts



The dollar value of construction contracts in June was $318,137,000, according to estimates by the F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was the highest monthly total since April, 1931.

Particularly significant to the building trade is the fact that this improvement in contracts has taken place in the face of a sharp and continuous rise in construction costs. These costs are now 137 per cent above those of the base period, 1913, while the general commodity index is only about 25 per cent above 1913 average prices.

Machine Sales Headed for Low in August

New York, Aug. 10—Since April, orders for industrial machinery have followed a downward path, according to the current issue of American Machinist. August seems destined to continue this trend, but early signs seem to indicate that this month will establish the year's low.

A summer slump in machinery sales may be illogical since the heavy industries are a long ways removed from the seasonal style influences that dominate consumer goods. However, warm weather weakness is traditional in machinery markets and is perhaps a sign of returning "normalcy."

N. E. SALES DIP

New England is no exception to the general trend with final reports of July sales showing a tapering off from June figures. August seems headed for a still lower level. Despite current dullness, dealers in this section look to the next quarter with confidence.

In the New York territory a better picture prevails. Both June and July were good months and August is starting off well. Philadelphia finds the atmosphere full of promise in the face of a low August level. From inquiries received, this fall should bring another good line of orders.

A slight decrease in inquiries and orders is also evident in Pittsburgh, although the recession has not reached the proportions of a slump. Improved labor relations in the steel centers serve somewhat to offset the seasonal swing. Good steady business is in sight when the vacation period has passed.

Cincinnati reports good volume, with some manufacturers having a big month in July. Those fortunate enough to have missed the general dullness doubt whether any slump is in sight at all. On the other hand Cleveland is appreciably affected and unless there is a spurt later in August, this month will likely be the year's worst.

Machine tool volume in Detroit has dropped off. There will not be many changes in cars this year and consequently not much retooling. The move of several larger companies in locating plants elsewhere also has its effect. However, some nice inquiries are coming in and buying is expected to open up in September. Perishable tools being bought on an immediate requirement basis show fairly good volume.

CHICAGO OUTLOOK

In Chicago there is evidence of orders taking a decidedly upward trend. Unfilled order files have kept up in good fashion despite a few rather lean weeks. There is considerable buying on foot again, particularly among some of the larger corporations.

A fairly steady volume has been maintained in St. Louis and inquiry has again become more active. The Pacific Coast looks for a return of better volume during the early fall. M. Greenberg's Sons, an 83-year-old San Francisco firm, has announced plans for a new $250,000 brass foundry.

Douglas Backlog $36,000,000

Testimony that the Douglas Aircraft Corp. now has a backlog of orders amounting to $36,000,000 was given before the House Naval Affairs Committee by W. H. Lewis, comptroller of the company.

The corporation's present business is broken down as follows: Army contracts, 65 per cent; navy 16 per cent; domestic transport 8 per cent and foreign transport 11 per cent.

The army business of the Douglas firm includes the $11,000,000 contract received by the corporation in June.

Orders on the books will keep the Douglas factory busy until March or April, 1939, Mr. Lewis testified dependent on continuous operations and no strikes or other interruptions.

Mr. Lewis opposed the 10 per cent limitation on profits now carried in navy contracts.

Steady Wool Prices Likely

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP)—Wool prices are likely to stay at about the present level during the next few months, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted in its report on the current market situation.

Mill consumption has declined from the high level prevailing during the early part of the year, the report said, but United States supplies are still below average and the demand continues relatively favorable.

Domestic consumption of apparel wool during the first six months of the year was 16 per cent larger than during the first half of 1936 and larger than in the same months of any year since 1923.

Favorable Packing Outlook

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

New York, Aug. 10—Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of Wilson & Company, told me that the outlook for the packing industry is favorable.

"The meat packing industry," he explained, "is emerging from one of the most difficult periods in its history. Heavy losses were incurred during the period of declining prices, 1929-33, as was the case in most other industries.

"Since the depth of the depression, the industry has had to deal with many other acute problems, including the hog processing tax, requirements under the NRA and a drastic reduction in hog supplies. Only one of these problems remains with us today—reduced hog supplies—but with favorable food prospects this year, we are looking forward to a substantial increase in hog production.

"Improved demand for meats and livestock by-products during the 1935-36 fiscal year enabled the meat packing industry to pay higher prices for livestock, increase wages of employes and retain a small margin of profit. Further improvements in demand during the current year have resulted in a continued increase in the amount paid of livestock and additional increases in wages. Total payrolls in the meat packing industry are now approximately the same level as prevailed in the middle of 1929, despite the reduced volume of hog slaughter, and hourly wage rates are the highest on record.

"Considering the prospects for a more normal volume of livestock slaughter and no evidence at present of a serious recession in industrial activity, I would say that the outlook in the meat packing industry is reasonably optimistic."

Mr. Wilson stressed the remarkable pickup in the prospective purchasing power of farmers. "Prospects," the packer declared, "for farm income during the remainder of 1937 look very favorable at present. Farmers have experienced generally good weather conditions so far this season, and it looks as though we will have a bountiful crop year. This, together with the best demand conditions since 1929, makes a very bright picture for agriculture.

"The winter wheat crop, which is now being harvested, is the largest since 1931, and the spring wheat crop no doubt will be much larger than last year. This large crop will again enable wheat growers to enter foreign markets, and at a time when competing supplies from other countries are expected to be small.

"Income from livestock thus far in 1937 has been above that of the corresponding period last year, due to improved consumer demand for meats and higher prices for by-products. During the first five months of the year, packers paid $690,000,000 for livestock slaughtered under federal inspection, which is 8 per cent larger than the amount paid in the same months of 1936.

"A seasonal decline in livestock prices during the last quarter of the year may be expected to accompany the usual bulge in receipts during that period. However, with prospects for a good demand for breeding and feeding as well as for slaughter, total income from livestock sales during the last half of the year should compare very favorably with the same period of last year."

Queried concerning the development of new industrial uses for agricultural products, Mr. Wilson said:

"Industrial uses for agricultural products are slowly but steadily increasing. Processors and manufacturers using agricultural products as raw materials are making an increasing use of chemical research in finding new outlets for their products. Many experiment stations and research foundations are also making contributions to our fund of knowledge in this field.

"The meat packing industry has made much progress during recent years in finding new uses for livestock by-products and improved methods of preparing meats for the consumer. We consider our research department as an indispensable part of our business. Its findings not only improve our competitive position, but also contribute to the welfare of agriculture by broadening the demand for livestock products."

Edgar Lewis Sales, Profit Jump

In its semi-annual report to stockholders, Edgar P. Lewis & Sons Inc., reports net sales for the first six months of the year of $1,204,-853.02, an increase of 20 per cent over sales of $997,285.11 for the same period last year.

Net profits for the period amounted to $51,065.80 after all charges including depreciation and reserve for federal income and excess profit taxes. This represents a gain of 88 per cent over the $27,012.32 for the same period last year.

STOCKS Turn MIXED

TRADING LIGHT

New York, Aug. 10—Stocks stumbled and righted themselves at intervals in today's market. Buying shifted from selected motors, oils and rubbers to utilities and specialties. Steels, rails and coppers lacked recovery stamina. Quotations were mixed later and volume unusually light.

Brokers said many traders were waiting for Congress to adjourn before expanding commitments.

Up fractions to a point or so at the best were shares of Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Goodyear, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Allied Chemical, Houston Oil, Texas Corp., Socony Vacuum, Wayne Pump, Spiegel, Inc., Clark Equipment, Pathe and American Radiator. Some of these eventually gave ground.

Early losses running to a point in steels were reduced later, but U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, National Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube had difficulty in holding their own.

General Motors was little better than even most of the time. Backward were Auburn, Deere, American Telephone, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, St. Joseph Lead, American Metal, American Can, duPont, Barnsdall, Pure Oil, Tidewater Oil, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Radio, Paramount and Allied Stores. Virtually unchanged were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth and Macy.

CURRENT TOPICS

Merchandising issues came in for study in the light of reports from some store executives that August retail sales thus far have shown slackening tendencies. Increases over last year were said to be running less than 5 per cent in several sections.

On the other hand considerable satisfaction was drawn from the Montgomery Ward figures disclosing July sales were 18.7 per cent above those of the same 1936 month, while turnover for six months topped the corresponding period the year before by 27.9 per cent.

The mail order house found evidence accumulating that the autumn months will bring a brisk pickup in trade, particularly in farm areas where bumper crops have lifted buying power substantially.

Cotton Rallies After Early Break

After an early break to new low levels on disappointing Liverpool cables, and under foreign and domestic selling, prices rallied partially on trade buying and covering but were subject to numerous small reaks and rallies.

December sold from an early low of 10.26 to 10.35 and at the beginning of the last hour was at 10.30 when the entire list was 4 to 8 points net lower.

Votes 10-Cent Cotton Loan

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP)—The Senate agricultural committee voted today in favor of 10-cent cotton loans to farmers.

a In bankruptcy or receivership, or being reorganized under Bankruptcy Act, or securities assumed by such companies.

Rates of dividends in the foregoing table are annual disbursements based on the last quarterly or semi-annual declaration. Unless otherwise noted, special or extra dividends are not included.

x Ex dividend. xr Ex rights. a Also extra or extras. e Paid last year. f Payable in stock. g Declared or paid so far this year. h Cash or stock. k Accumulated dividend paid or declared this year.

Comments of Brokers

No general trend is now apparent and unless last week's tops are soon improved upon, the prospect of a reaction in the industrials will be more clearly defined.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

We are now inclined to believe that the trend will be resumed upward on a broad and active scale sooner than looked for, and that those waiting for a sizable recession to buy stocks, will be disappointed and forced to do so at higher levels during the latter part of August and early September.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

Unless volume expands or the rails continue their advance, the market will probably turn slightly irregular as recent gains are digested. Looking ahead the prospects appear favorable for higher and more active markets.—J. S. Wilson Josephthal & Co.

Prospects for fall business are considered to be definitely good, and the outlook for the market is consequently bright.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

While the business promise for the fall remains unchanged, policy of bying on dips is warranted.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

PERFECT Weather for COTTON

BIG CROP YIELD SEEN

Washington, Aug. 10 (INS)—Almost perfect growing weather is responsible for what promises to be the biggest cotton crop since 1931, Department of Agriculture officials said today. The U. S. crop reporting board estimated the crop will total 15,593,000 bales.

The board reported the average condition of all cotton as of Aug. 1 at 81.3 per cent, or 6 per cent better than a year earlier, and 14 per cent better than the average condition on Aug. 1 for the 10-year period of 1923-32.

HIGHEST ON RECORD

As a result the yield per acre promises to be the highest on record. The board estimated the average yield per acre at 223.3 pounds. The next highest average yield on record was 223.1 pounds per acre of 1898. The average last year was only 197.6 pounds per acre, and for the ten-year period of 1923-32 it was only 169.9 pounds.

In the last five years during which there were the cotton plow-up campaign of 1933, the AAA production control program of 1934 and 1935 and the AAA soil conservation program of 1936, the average [illegible] bales or [illegible] less per year than the [illegible] this year.

In the preceding five years including the depression years of 1930-31, the average production was 14,655,000 bales per year, or 938,000 less than the indicated 1937 crop. For the five years before the depression—1924-28 inclusive—the average crop was 14,331,000 bales.

PRICE AVERAGE VARIED

The price average for the last five years and [illegible] [illegible] was 11 cents per pound for 1927 [illegible] per pound.

In the five years before the depression the price average was 19.1 cents per pound. The highest price since the 35.41 cents per pound paid for cotton in the 1919 war year was 28.69 cents per pound in 1923. The lowest was 5.66 cents per pound, the average price of cotton in 1931.

Export Copper Price Highest Since April

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—The price of export copper was quoted today at the equivalent of 15 cents a pound, the highest since early April.

Today's level compared with 14.85 cents yesterday. Export copper touched a high for the year during the early spring speculative surge, when it was quoted at slightly more than 17 cents on March 11.

Opinion is divided whether the new [illegible] was representative of actual [illegible] although it was reported [illegible] was large at the [illegible].

Poor Dept. Store Showing in N. E.

In Boston and New England generally department stores [illegible] in July with the [illegible] year ago, when the [illegible] was providing a powerful stimulus to sales.

New England volume was 2 per cent behind a year ago, it is estimated by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, which compared with an increase of 3.5 per cent in June, while Boston volume was off 6.4 per cent, compared with a gain of 2.5 per cent in June.

By states, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont had increases while Maine and Massachusetts had decreases in July.

Cambridge Corp. Files With SEC

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP)—Registration statements for new securities filed today with the Securities Commission included:

I. B. Corporation, Cambridge, Mass., $405,000 of no par value common stock, for plant expansion and working capital. Underwriters Engineers' Holdings, Inc.

Brown Co. Files Plan

Portland, Me., Aug. 10 (AP)—A plan for financial reorganization of the Brown Company, rayon and paper manufacturers, which would terminate a financial trusteeship and provide payment of creditors' class in full, was filed in federal court.

The proposal presented by Orton B. Brown, vice-president and treasurer, called for raising $12,500,000 for working capital and expansion, and enlargement of the board of trustees to represent new business and financial interests.

The company, one of the largest and oldest of its kind in the country, operates New Hampshire and Quebec plants employing 7500 persons. For two years it has been in trusteeship under the federal bankruptcy laws.

In marked contrast with conditions of September, 1935, when the company, encountering difficulty paying bond interest, took its affairs to federal court, the company today reported it was "currently earning more than twice the amount necessary to meet interest charges on bonds."

Further attesting improved conditions, new capital for plant expansion was sought in anticipation of a demand for pulp next year [illegible] per cent in excess of present [illegible].

Since the company's formation [illegible] the entire voting stock and directorship has been in the Brown family. Under the new plan, however, seven of the 11 directors would represent new interests while the remaining four would be directors of the present company. For the first time preferred stockholders would be given a voice in the management.

The proposed financing would be underwritten by two Montreal firms—Wood, Gundy & Co., Ltd., and McLeod, Young, Weir & Co., Ltd. The plan contemplated expansion of the Canadian plant at La Tuque, Que., with the Berlin, N. H. plant making increased use of La Tuque-produced pulp.

Interest on bonds and interest on back interest would be paid under the plan. An additional issue of stock, both common and preferred, to care for arrearage dividends on preferred stock was planned.

A $6,500,000 issue of 3½ per cent to 5 per cent serial bonds by the company's Canadian subsidiary, Brown Corporation of La Tuque, and $6,000,000 in unsecured 5 per cent convertible serial notes of the parent company at Berlin would be sold to the two Canadian underwriting houses at 95 and 97, respectively, provided the plan is approved by the court and security holders before October 1.

A company explanation set forth:

"Present 5½ per cent first mortgage bonds, series A and B, outstanding in the amount of $21,-415,500 would be exchanged for new bonds, par for par, with same interest, same maturity date and secured by the same properties. All past due interest and interest on this amount too, amounting to $2,643,292 as of May 15, 1937, would be paid in cash.

"The present 6 per cent preferred stock, par $100,000,000 outstanding, would be exchanged for one and one-fifth shares of the new 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock, stated value $100. The new preferred would be entitled to cumulative dividends from May 1, 1937, at the rate of $5 a year, except that in the first two years directors could pay dividends in additional preferred stock instead of cash.

"A further bonus to present preferred stockholders in the form of one share of new common stock for each share of old preferred is authorized in the plan. Receipt of this stock together with voting privilege which would be attached to the new preferred stock would give preferred stockholders a voice in the management for the first time.

"Present common stock, no par value, would be exchanged for five shares of a new common, par $1 or less, making a total of 2,000,000 shares outstanding after consummation of the plan. Certain common shareholders have agreed, however, to accept 100,-000 fewer shares in order to provide the common stock bonus for preferred stockholders.

"General claims against the Brown Company in the forms of notes and accounts payable, which aggregate with interest approximately $1,530,462, would be settled by payment of 50 per cent of all outstanding claims in cash and 50 per cent in non-interest bearing notes maturing 1-3 each in two, three and four years. It is believed that approximately $730,000 of such notes would be issues."

SURVEY SUPER STATE SHORE HIGHWAY

A four-lane, circular super highway around Boston, to take traffic from the North to the South shores out of crowded business districts, appeared toward reality today.

Commissioner of Public Works William F. Callahan announced that the long and eagerly awaited project is a "must" construction project in the state's long-range building program now being surveyed under a million-dollar WPA traffic census.

Full details of the traffic toll in the Greater Boston area and suggestions for construction of the new circular super highway around the city are contained in a $75[illegible] engineers survey being printed today.

Extending from Gloucester to [illegible]asset the new super highway will follow the old [illegible] of No. 1[illegible] [illegible] sectors in Newton and Waltham.

GUILD ORDERS VOTE ON CIO

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—The international executive board of the American Newspaper Guild today has ordered a referendum vote to decide the questions of CIO affiliation and other programs adopted by the Guild's national convention.

Held in response to a motion of the Columbus (O.) guild the referendum either will sanction or revoke convention decisions in dispute. The board has rephrased the Columbus motion into seven subheadings which are in brief as follows:

1—CIO affiliation.

2—To admit workers other than editorial.

3—Abolishment of vice-president to represent wire service employes.

4—To advocate defeat of Fascists in Spain.

5—To support independent political action to benefit farmers and laborers.

6—To advocate a three billion dollar WPA fund.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

A young man named Art Rooney, out of Pittsburgh, Pa., who is identified as the owner of the professional football club of that city, has been creating a terrific sensation around the race course at Saratoga Springs by the size of his wagers on the races and his winnings.

Damon Runyon

The winnings are the real cause of the sensation, of course. You probably would hear little or nothing of Mr. Rooney as a loser. He would be too common. The world loves a winner. The crowds now [illegible] Mr. Rooney to find out how he is betting [illegible].

Mr. Rooney is a [illegible] race [illegible]. He bobbed up in Saratoga the first week of the meeting there [illegible].

[illegible] enough for Mr. Rooney and he started from there.

In a few days following Mr. Mara's suggestion he is said to have won $1[illegible],000. We do not vouch for the accuracy of the figure. As a rule race track winnings are greatly exaggerated by rumor. So are losses.

In Mr. Rooney's case, however, we may safely say that he topped $100,000 that first whirl, and that he quit Saratoga. He said he would not return either. He said he knew when he had enough.

Probably Mr. Rooney got to wondering later how long that thing had been going on as he is reported back in Saratoga and still winning [illegible]. Mr. Rooney is perhaps too young to have heard of the [illegible] law of the turf, as the horse players [illegible].

It is odd that he should represent the [illegible] that produced one of the few exceptions to the law, Mr. Pittsburgh Phil Smith, the greatest race track plunger of the [illegible].

It's Our Family's Whiskey, neighbor—and it's sure Tasty and Mild!

Tim Stiles joking under the old beech!

Tim—he can kid us if he wants—but I love that old beech in Dogwood Gully. It was setting around on the rocks under the old beech that me and William and Tom got a lot of our schooling from Pa Wilken, and he was a fine distiller as ever there was!
Harry E. Wilken

There's some history behind this Family's Recipe you Boston folks are buying!

I personally know some of the folks that went and cut their names and everything into our old beech there—and some were real good friends of Pa Wilken. And I wouldn't wonder if others was acquainted with Grandpa Wilken hisself. A lot of those good folks have come and gone by now, but I sort of like to look on our big beech as an old friend of the family that has seen how The Wilken Family has always stuck together—each generation of us trying to do things the way that would make our fathers and grandfathers real proud and happy.

For at least 3 generations that I know of, us Wilkens have been whiskey making people. Each generation has spent its whole life studying out how to make the very mildest and tastiest whiskey—and then seeing to it that the next generation got the hang of it. So when you taste the extra mildness and tastiness [illegible] Family's Recipe has got, I [illegible] wish you'd remember all the years it took to make it that way!

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

I shouldn't be surprised if the credit for the unemployment census, for which the Senate has voted, will go in the long run to our Massachusetts Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. Of course, the census is not yet a certainty, as the House of Representatives has still to vote on the proposal, but it seems a probability.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Peering behind the scenes and reading between the lines, it looks as if Senator Lodge's speech which attracted so much attention a little while ago really forced the reluctant administration to do something about a proposal which attracted so much favorable comment.

So now, characteristically, the Administration dresses up the idea in a bill of its own, gives it to Senator Black to sponsor, calls upon Harry Hopkins to praise it with faint damns and supposedly will carry it through as an administration measure, thus keep to itself whatever credit may be involved.

Administration Hand Forced by Sen. Lodge

But the people, particularly the people of this state, will know that after a long opposition from Mr. Hopkins and presumably the President to anything which might throw the bright light of national publicity on the whole business of unemployment census and the numbers on relief, Senator Lodge has managed to force their hands.

Unless the Administration kills the resolution in the House, we may have the opportunity to find out something about numbers and costs of the whole relief project.

As to the advisability of the census, viewed by sober and intelligent opinion, there is no doubt whatever. If we had had the information before the election we could have voted much more intelligently.

Mr. Hopkins' rather arrogant statement that he does not see how a census can make the PWA function more efficiently is obviously beside the question. Only with the census can we check up on his work.

The Administration would doubtless prefer not to have his work checked up. Still, it has suffered so many losses of prestige of late that it may feel the time has come to back down on the matter.

After all, the Administration can still interpret the figures. As an old adage has it, figures can't lie but liars can figure.

Inherits Fighting Quality of Namesake

It looks as if young Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge is consolidating his political position in these parts pretty well. In that he seems to take after his famous and successful grandfather, besides being a pleasanter sort of person, considerably less frigid and waspish. But he WAS a grand fighter and in that his grandson seems to take after him.

Already the young Senator, in conjunction with the older Democratic leader Senator Walsh, has gained considerable popularity by finding in the half-baked Hours and Wages bill a chance to benefit Massachusetts and New England industry generally.

The Black-Connery bill apparently aims to use the powers of interstate commerce to crack down on those backward states of the south which are using low wages, long hours, and hard working conditions to compete with New England and the north and east generally.

If it works, it may decisively end the flight of manufacturing capital to the South. That is to be hoped. Senators Walsh's and Lodge's support may be of great importance as a rallying point.

Warns Principle May Be Used in Reverse

There is one point, however, that must be made. The Black-Connery bill is obviously another attempt to take power out of the hands of the states and hand it over to federal interstate control.

As the bill stands it seems to be written to favor the North at the expense of the South. But if the bill passes and that principle is accepted, it may also be used with the reverse English.

The principle is a dangerous one. Once accepted as a part of the Roosevelt campaign it can equally be used to favor other states, perhaps the western states, at the expense of the North and East, particularly at the expense of New England.

In that case, the immediate victory for our industry may be too dearly won. Even its supporters see the dangers of increased bureaucratic control implicit in the policy. Unremitting vigilance is still the watchword.

SEPIA TINT PLEASES

[illegible]

The [illegible] donna Emma Trentini first appeared in "The Firefly" but the ageless Friml tunes that have been retained in the rewritten script [illegible] "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart," "Sympathy" and "Giannina Mia." New numbers are "He Who Loves and Rides Away" and the [illegible] Serenade.

This tune, an infectious, unpretentious little number sung by Miss MacDonald and Jones while she is seated in her coach and he is cantering alongside, has all the charm and quaint humor of a delightful folksong. And not a little part of this is contributed by the accompaniment of a small boy named Robert Spindola and Manuel Alvarez, the [illegible].

LURES TOWN BEAUX

In the 1937 version, Miss MacDonald is cast [illegible] in a Spanish nightspot, a honeypot luring all the town's beaux [illegible] particularly jealous one, she captivates the already infatuated Allan Jones with a warm, lingering kiss.

Subsequently Jones is revealed as a French spy and she, as an agent in the Spanish secret service. He follows her to Vittoria where she is sent to discover the next maneuver of Napoleon, exposes her but reluctantly.

She has cleverly made herself a camp-follower to attract the attention of Major de Rougemont (Warren William). In his quarters, she [illegible] a map which de Rougemont demands. It is a map of the French campaign and when de Rougemont orders a change in plan to circumvent the Spanish it [illegible] she'd do. When Wellington captures the town, she is released but her lover is among the wounded. Their happy reunion is another pleasant cause for song, a song a deux.

Warren William, [illegible] gotten up in some dashing Chocolate-soldier numbers, is not too comfortable in his unaccustomed role. It may be the uniform. Others in the cast are Leonard Penn, Gladys George's husband, who makes a most attractive Etienne, Douglas Dumbrille, as an impressive Spanish chief of secret service; Billy Gilbert, as a credible innkeeper and Henry Daniell, as General Savary.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

By a vote of better than four to one, the men and women employed at the Ware Valley manufacturing plant in Ware have declared in favor of the morning and afternoon musical interludes that have been a feature of life there for nearly 10 years.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

The company decided to discontinue the music about a month ago, then reconsidered and put it up to the employes. The vote has convinced everyone that these interludes not only promote efficiency but help to keep the hands satisfied. There are 500 persons working at the mill, [illegible] per cent are women. Every morning at [illegible] everybody [illegible] work and there is a program of [illegible] graph music. It lasts for 15 minutes. Every afternoon at 2 15 the same thing occurs.

Pioneering in the direction of efficiency and contentment, some office master mind long ago devised the idea of morning and afternoon "recesses," then went on to experiment with music. Experts have shown that the efficiency of every employe has been increased and that the musical quarter-hours are much more beneficial than fifteen minutes devoted to just sitting or [illegible] about.

Lively Tunes Pep Up Production, Survey Shows

Manager James Nields explains that they don't have to listen. They can devote the time to having refreshments. Or they can get up and dance, if the spirit moves. All programs are "by request." The employes make the requests, and new records are provided every week.

It's been established that lively tunes are best for pepping up the operatives and keeping them happy during the day. Jazz and swing have had a tremendous vogue. Now that they seem to be declining a bit, there has been a turn toward zippy marches and springy waltzes.

In other parts of the country they have charts and curves and things to prove scientifically how valuable these musical interludes are. Manager Nields simply says somebody thought the folks working on the machines might like it!

If You'd Avoid Trouble Get 'Big' Auto Number

A certain police officer hereabouts has to chuckle whenever he hears of self-appointed "big shots" trying to get low auto license numbers.

"Every policeman in the state is trying to bag one of these low number fellows," he says "It isn't as easy to 'fix' arrests now, and some people who think they are important haven't been able to wiggle through the net as they used to do. Best bet is to get a number high enough so traffic officers won't pay it any special attention."

Three years in a newspaper office will teach a spiritually minded young man or woman more about life and religion and their problems than an equal time spent in a theological seminary. The opinion is that of the Rev. William L. Stidger, professor of the theory of preaching in Boston University's School of Theology.

Rev. Mr. Stidger was a newspaperman himself, and a good one. He says three stiff years of reporting will make any theorist a realist.

Museum Gets Exhibits In Its Own Diggings

If you are a tourist and headed Capeward, don't miss the Aptucxet Trading Post at Bourne. Pilgrims established it as a post in 1627, but it's a little museum now. The Bourne Historical Society sponsors it.

While reconstruction was under way, workmen excavating on the site uncovered a lot of clay pipes, pewter spoons, old china and candlesticks, all authentically early American, and they are prize exhibits.

August sales aren't all for women. Men come in for consideration at various Boston shops this month. At the Winship Luggage Store they are offering fine leather brief cases at reduced prices . . . Kennedy's sale of linen and tweed jackets ought to be welcome these sweltering days . . . Rogers Peet is conducting a summer clearance in ties, many of them British-made . . . At Wright and Ditson's the specials include golf balls, clubs, tennis rackets and other sport paraphernalia.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Here, Junior Birdmen, is your chance to go to sea and see more than the sea! See?

Birdmen, parents and friends also are invited to go on the all-day cruise to Provincetown and back Friday. Special rates for Birdmen, IF they wear their wingpins, will be 50 cents each. For each accompanying adult, the rate will be $1.50 including return fare.

Leaving Long Wharf, at the foot of State street on Atlantic avenue at 10 a. m., and proceeding through Boston harbor, there will be various islands to see, nearly every one of which has its own interesting, amusing or weird story. These as well as the shoreline points of interest and other islands and lighthouses on the way to the tip of Cape Cod will be indicated over the loud speaker system.

Every Junior Birdman will be able to pick out for himself, before leaving the harbor, the familiar lines of the East Boston airport.

At historic Provincetown, there are innumerable sights of interest, including the art museum and the $100,000 granite monument, 254 feet high, erected on Town Hill in the center of the city and dedicated by President Taft, Aug. 5, 1910.

This shaft, the cost of which was borne by the United States, Massachusetts and the Pilgrim Memorial Association, commemorates the visit of the Mayflower to Provincetown in November, 1620.

This visit lasted a month and was marked by a number of events, the outstanding of which were the drowning of Dorothy Bradford, wife of the Governor; the birth of Perigrine White, first child born to Christian parents in America, and the preparation and signing of the "Immortal Compact."

This last is declared to be the first form of constitutional government recorded in history.

The Pilgrims saw Indians for the first time in Provincetown, enjoyed their first drink of spring water and it was on the beach that the Pilgrim women did their first washing since leaving Holland.

The Pilgrims were not the first to visit Provincetown. They were preceded by Thorwald, an Icelandic Viking in 1004; by Thorbid Karlsfeni in 1007; by Cortereal, a French navigator in 1501, by Bartholomew Gosnold on May 15, 1602, and by Captain John Smith on his voyage to Virginia.

Provincetown was incorporated in 1727.

The town is now a famous resort and artists' colony in summer. Its chief industry is fishing and the variety of craft ranging from pleasure yachts and steamships to the many types of fishing boats, makes the harbor picturesque.

Birdmen may also go swimming during the two-hour stay in Provincetown, go window shopping or [illegible].

The boat will dock at Boston about 6 or 7 p. m. En route, deck games and dancing may be enjoyed.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

IT'S to be an evening of song tonight when Ben Bernie plays host (WBZ) to Conrad Thibault during the half hour from 9 to 9:30 p. m.

Ben is reported as feeling bold enough to match his own self-styled baritoning against that of the good looking young network favorite named Thibault, despite last minute flashes which tell of his best friends telling him to be more cautious.

BEST BETS TOMORROW

9:00 a. m.—WBZ—Breakfast Club with Don McNeill as master of ceremonies.

10:30 a. m.—WEEI—Louise and the Lads.

11:15 a. m. — WMEX — Cooking School under the direction of Martha Lee, home economist of the Boston Evening American.

N. F. T.

And further in the order of things for this evening (WBZ) at 8 o'clock looms in the form of a question. Are "kitchen snoopers" a blight or a boon? The weekly "Husbands and Wives" program presents the evidence and lets listeners decide for themselves after the broadcast. Sedley Brown and Allie Lowe Miles, who interview husbands and wives in radio's domestic forum have defined the "kitchen snooper" as the husband who insists on walking around the kitchen while a meal is being prepared, tasting the various things in process of cooking.

RADIO RELATIONS

It has been said how the film industry is more or less full of relatives, but radio is seemingly moving in on that kith and kin distinction.

According to Benny Goodman, maestro of the Swing School, airing most of the radio names are surrounded by their brothers, [illegible] and aunts.

Benny himself has his brother Harry in the band, another brother, Eugene, as orchestra librarian and a sister, Ethel, as a corresponding secretary.

MILTON'S MA

EAST OR WEST?

Plans are nearing completion for the start of the new September series starring Lawrence Tibbett. Lawrence will have the say as to whether the program will come from New York or Hollywood. Andre Kostelanetz is to be the music making man.

Tibbett has both pictures and the program to consider, as does Kostelanetz, who is wanted to help make music while Lily Pons is posing for the cameras in Hollywood, but Tibbett will be the deciding factor, he said.

* * *

Captain Mary B. Greene, of Cincinnati, one of America's few woman steamboat pilots, and Joe Cage, of Peoria, the one-armed boy who became a famous athlete, will step up to the microphone this evening (WBZ) between 8:30 and 9 o'clock to tell their stories on Edgar A. Guest's "It Can Be Done."

Captain Greene, a veritable "Tugboat Annie" in real life, is head pilot and owner of the Greene Line, operating out of Cincinnati. She steams up and down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers between New Orleans and her home city in the best tradition of Mark Twain and other renowned riverboat masters.

DAVIS Stars Return TO PLAY

BOBBY MAKES PLENTY OF HAY

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP)—Bobby Riggs, slightly subdued vocally and somewhat improved as a court tactician, may be getting in his last licks this season before he's buried by the newly returned Davis Cup stars, but you can take it from Bobby and most of those who have watched him play tennis this summer that he'll be heard from in the future.

SOX PARK MAY STOP YANKS

DI MAG Yet to Homer HERE

That question is: Can anybody stop those Yankees?

Most people say no, but the Red Sox are going to take four cracks at the American League leaders starting today, and they are just cocky enough to feel that they can turn the trick.

Being firm believers in the old idea that a good start makes for a perfect ending, the Croninmen are sending garrulous Buck Newsom to the Fenway hill today for the single game carded.

And Mr. Newson will have to do more than talk, for those Yankees are the ball club of the year.

INJURIES DON'T STOP 'EM

The Red Sox won twelve out of their last thirteen games and gained only half a game on the Yankees, who grabbed eleven out of their last thirteen.

Monte Pearson, one of their best hurlers, has just returned from the inactive list, and Lefty Gomez is in California at his sick mother's bedside. He will not take part in the series. Powell and others have been indisposed at various times, the pitching has been spotty, and yet the club maintains its incredible gait.

Why?

So what chance have the Red Sox?

It must first be made known that most of the Yankee power is displayed at home, where the short right field wall is made to order for Gehrig and Dickey and the other left handed batters on the club.

ROAD RECORD LIKE SOX

Here at Fenway Park, where that right field is almost out of reach, Mr. Gehrig and Mr. Dickey are not quite so troublesome.

That still leaves Mr. DiMaggio, who is a right-handed sticker, and yet for some reason "Dimag" has never hit a home run at Fenway Park.

Now if the "Big Three" can be effectively silenced, there is no reason why history shouldn't be written at Fenway Park these next few days.

JOE DiMAGGIO BILL DICKEY LOU GEHRIG (Boston Evening American Photo)

Father and son of the home run Yankee family, Joe DiMaggio, the greatest of all young baseball sensations, and Lou Gehrig, the iron-man veteran, are real champions to Catcher Bill Dickey, also of the New York club, who is shown holding their hands high in the air, a tribute to real winners. Dickey, himself, is no slouch with the bludgeon. In fact he has broken up several ball games this year with "slam" home runs. However, the Yankees' big noises have been DiMaggio and Gehrig. DiMag is setting the home run pace with 32.

JORDANS Renew Twi Feud WITH SAINTS

Monday being wash day, the Boston Park League semifinal playoff games were washed out by showers, this putting over until tonight that bitter battle between St. Augustines and Jordans, who will clash at the South Boston Stadium.

This semifinal series, which is determined by the best three out of five games, finds the Saints one up on Jordans.

The Saints gained this win at the Stadium last Thursday night when Hal Cheney set back the Retailers, 9-7. On Friday night, although Jordans won what has been termed "the greatest twilight game" ever played in Boston, 3-2, the game was protested by the St. Augustines and upheld so that it was ruled "no contest" and will be replayed tomorrow night at the Town Field.

In the second playoff game of the night the Casey Club of Neponset will be at home to the Pere Marquettes of Southie at the Garvey playground.

The Caseys, having swept through the last two games by rather large scores, are expected to gain the final playoff berth at the expense of the K. of C. nine unless "Gus Rook," Northeastern star, comes back to his iron-man role and sets the Neponset nine down.

Di Mag Can't See Sox

'Detroit Is Club to Beat,' Says Yankee Sophomore Sensation

Baseball's number one man—Joe DiMaggio—is not any too enthusiastic about the pennant chances of our Red Sox.

The New York Yankee spark plug, who looms as one of the greatest stars the game ever had, feels Detroit is the club for his gang to beat.

He points to the fact that the Yankees have won six out of the eight games they have played against the Red Sox this year.

When questioned as to whether he finds the second year any tougher than the first, in view of the fact that the second season is supposed to be the true test of a ball player, he chirped:

"I haven't found it so tough. I'm hitting 40 points better than last year, have connected for more home runs and have scored many more runs."

"The answer is that I doubt it. Furthermore, I am not shooting at it. I'm playing only to help the Yankees win. If records are made in the process, great. But they are the farthest thing from my mind."

Those who are intimate with him say it is remarkable the way he has kept both feet on the ground. He has more than lived up to the fondest dreams set by the Yankee management.

Yet DiMaggio is the same unaffected ball player who came up two years ago. Indeed, he is a true successor to Babe Ruth.

In the opinion of experts, Joe is almost perfection itself on a ball field. He is a great fielder, has a powerful arm and is smart defensively. Even Tris Speaker, than whom there was none better, says Joe is as fine an outfielder defensively as he has ever seen.

Joe is leading both leagues in home runs with 32; he is tied for second place in the American League battle with a .374 average; he has scored 101 runs to lead in that division; he has 143 hits, which is only one less than Beau Bell, the leader, and he is tied for second in triples.

Friedberg Scores Ace at Brookline

Using a six iron, Friedberg teed off on the 155-yard 12th hole, landed his ball right on the green, and then stood stunned as it trickled into the cup.

DEACON Faces Schumacher IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 10—Boston's weary Bees, battered in the West, open a three-game series with the Giants at the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

Deacon Danny MacFayden, who won two of the Bees' four victories in the West, will oppose Hal Schumacher.

The Bees have been unusually successful against Hal this year, beating him both times he took the hill against them, and for that reason they hope to chalk up their fifth victory since leaving home.

MacFayden is now pitching the brand of ball he hurled last year and for the past month has topped even Fette and Turner, the two prize rookies.

If the Somerville boy is right today he will give the Giants plenty of trouble. He has faced them three times this year and won only one start.

New Job for Ben

Robert Takes Chance With Mat Title | DiMaggio Has Color Test for Sox

By JACK CONWAY

I FIND THAT some of the better minds among the wrestling fans believe George (Dazzler) Clark of Scotland has an excellent chance to lift Yvon Robert's world's heavyweight championship when they clash in a finish bout at Fenway Park a week from tonight.

Mr. Boston

If Robert and Clark had clashed a year ago, I do not think anybody would have seriously questioned the fact Robert would have left the ring a winner. Yvon had just beaten Danno O'Mahony in a Montreal ring, and was wrestling in sensational form.

Robert later suffered a broken leg and was forced to spend months in the hospital. He only recently returned to the mat wars.

Robert is only 22 years old, but no athlete can remain away from competition as long as the champion was forced to do and still retain all of his form.

It was ring rust as much as anything else that enabled Joe Louis to win the heavyweight boxing title from Jimmy Braddock at Chicago. Braddock had not suffered a severe injury like Robert, but had been idle for two years.

Braddock, of course, had done a certain amount of training, but more than gymnasium drills are necessary if an athlete is to keep razor sharp.

* * *

Robert Will Have Mental Hazard

ROBERT WILL carry a mental hazard into the ring when he meets Clark on account of the fact he suffered a broken leg. If the Dazzler starts using toe holds, as he has a right to do under the rule of wrestling, Yvon is certain to experience many moments of mental anguish.

Clark is a good wrestler who is also extremely fast. The Dazzler has enough meanness in his makeup to give him the fire so necessary for one trying to win a championship.

It was meanness that caused Clark to kick Maurice Robert, brother of Yvon, in their Fenway Park bout, and later to take a few cracks at the champion.

Seabiscuit and War Admiral

A RACE BETWEEN Seabiscuit and War Admiral would furnish the best possible attraction that could be offered to turf followers. War Admiral is expected to return to the races soon, and if he does he will be ready to take on Seabiscuit.

War Admiral and Seabiscuit were to clash in the Massachusetts Handicap, but this meeting was prevented when War Admiral met with a leg injury as he won the Belmont Stakes.

On the form Seabiscuit showed in winning the Massachusetts Handicap, he is likely to defeat any thoroughbred in the world at this time. Seabiscuit has won seven stake races in a row, which is a wonderful tribute to his consistency.

When Discovery was hailed as the wonder horse, he was very inconsistent. If he happened to get bumped going to the clubhouse turn, he would pin his ears back and sulk, and usually ran for Sweeney.

I didn't think Seabiscuit's victory in the Massachuettts Handicap was in doubt once he hit the clubhouse turn. He got off to a good start, and didn't have any early interference.

"Red" Pollard rated Seabiscuit perfectly until he got ready to make his move on the turn coming into the home stretch. There was a lot of run left in Seabiscuit at the finish, and there wasn't a chance of any other horse catching up with him.

Baseball Interest Reaches New High

WITH THE YANKEES in town to battle the Red Sox, baseball interest has hit a new high. There is almost as much enthusiasm over the clash between the Sox and Yankees as there would be in a World's Series.

The sensational winning drive of the Sox has established the men of Cronin as favorites with Boston and New England fans. The fans feel the Sox have the necessary power to give battle to the Yankees or any other club in the league.

Pitching still remains the Sox problem, but Joe Cronin is hopeful he will be able to handle his flingers in a way that will enable them to get the best possible results against the Yankees.

Joe DiMaggio remains the individual star of the Yankees. Lou Gehrig's brilliance as a ball player has been dimmed a bit by DiMaggio as was also the case when Babe Ruth was with the Yankees. Gehrig seems destined by fate to run second to some player possessing more dash and color.

Joe Cronin has been frank in stating it was DiMaggio that made the Yankees a pennant winner last year. Cronin knows that to beat the Yankees one must stop DiMaggio. This looks like a very difficult task.

Essex Limits Field To 32 Women

Big time tennis returns to New England on Monday next and will be with us for two weeks.

The he-men of the game will be strutting their stuff at Newport next Monday, the ladies at the annual Essex County invitation tourney.

Both serve as tune-ups for the national doubles, the piece-de-resistance which comes to Longwood Cricket Club starting August 23.

The Wightman Cup competition between the leading women of United States and Great Britain is to be held in New York on August 20 and 21.

From the country's top ranked stars will come the makeup of the United States cup team.

FIVE TO BE CHOSEN

The lineup is still uncertain. But it is a certainty that it will be selected from a group of: 1—Alice Marble, 2—Helen Jacobs, 3—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, 4—Gracyn Wheeler, 5—Carolin Babcock, 6—Helen Pedersen, 7—Midge Van Ryn, and 8—Dorothy Bundy.

Five will be selected. The other three will, in all probability, add spice to the Essex show.

Such foreign players as Jadwiga Jedrejowska, noted Polish champion; Anita Lizana, Chilean champion; Jean Milne, Canada's ranking star, and Mrs. Tokuko Nakano, Japan and Hawaiian champion, will lend distinction to the large cast.

All New England is waiting to get a glimpse of the Polish star, who has already beaten every ranked American player. She improves with every court appearance and must be rated high when thinking in the terms of this year's national championships.

ALL TOP-NOTCHERS

Fritz Bundy and Mrs. Nat Winthrop (Serita Bartlett), Essex chairmen, are limiting the invitations to 32 women players.

A list of those whose entries will be accepted include Virginia Rice Johnson, Dorothy Andrus, Norma Taubele, Eunice Dean, of America's "second ten"; Kay Winthrop, ranked No. 9; Elizabeth Blackman and Florence LeBoutillier; Patricia Henry, two time intercollegiate champion from Los Angeles; Hope Knowles, Anne Page and Alison Harrison, all of Philadelphia; Bonnie Miller Blank, Jane Stanton, Barbara Winslow and Eleanor Dawson, youthful Californians; Polly Morrill, Evangeline MacLennan, Betty Corbiere, Mrs. Nakano, Mary Cootes, Virginia Mabley, Marilynn McRae, Olga Kallos, Edith Clarke, Mrs. Jesse and Mrs. Stanley Robinson, Maryland champion; and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, French champion.

393 Yachts Out At Marblehead

LACK OF WIND HALTS 12 CLASSES

MANY RESAILS SCHEDULED

Marblehead, Aug. 10—Nineteen classes, postponed from Saturday morning, were scheduled to be resailed here today as Race Week continued under Eastern Yacht Club auspices.

Lack of wind forced postponement of 12 classe, and no effort was made to resail any of the 19 classes which would have been done had the day been sailable.

"SEA OF GLUE"

Considering conditions, the turnout of 393 boats was all the more remarkable. Only the Boston's great fleet of 401 boats last year exceeded this mark, and the meet exceeded any previous Eastern record by an even dozen yachts.

The Monday races were sailed in the lightest of airs from the south over shortened courses, but even this did not save the day.

At one time no less than 150 boat were massed together, floundering hopelessly without the slightest hint of a breeze. It was a pretty picture from the shore, but not so pretty for the hard-working Eastern committee.

TWONO ESCAPES

One class which extricated itself within the time limit was the Indians. Here Walter Perry's Twono came home with a big lead well within the 3¼-hour limit.

Among the other winners were Vice Commodore Daniel E. Watson of the Corinthian Yacht Club, who scored his first win ever with Stranger II. in Class B, and the Dart, which scored her second victory over the Stars.

67 Collegiates on All-Star Team

Chicago, Aug. 10 (AP)—Players who will make up the squad of 67 former collegiat grid stars named to oppose Green Bay's packers the night of Sept. 1, began arriving today as tabulation of votes in the coaches' poll neared completion.

The first arrival was Delbert Bjork, 215-pound tackle from the University Oregon. He was followed by Sam Francis of Nebraska, who will start at fullback against the professional champions.

Meanwhile, Charles (Gus) Dorais of the University of Detroit, apparently was an easy winner of the head coaching job. He had 4,932,357 points to 3,743,744 for his closest competitor, Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern. In third place was Elmer Layden of Notre Dame with 3,723,091 points. Jimmy Phelan of Washington had 2,760,765 points and Bernie Moore of Louisiana, 2,397,368.

Final returns will be announced tomorrow, but the five present leaders apparently have won jobs on the all-star staff. Players will register Saturday at Northwestern University and then swing into two weeks of training.

Mike Michalske Rejoins Packers

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 10 (INS)—The Green Bay Packers today announced that Mike Michalske, former Penn State guard, had decided to resign his position as assistant football coach at Lafayette College, to return to the Packers for the 1937 season.

Michalske, who played in the Packer line for several years, will serve as both a player and assistant coach.

Ed Fuller of Salem, intercollegiate tennis ace, who is Paul Guibord's partner in the Hearst Grand National tennis tournament finals at Los Angeles. Fuller and Guibord won the Hearst New England doubles at Harvard and the Eastern doubles at New York.

Kelley Must Tell Why He Didn't Choose to Run

Johnny Kelley, of Arlington, member of the last U. S. Olympic team and winner of the 1935 Boston Marathon, will be asked to explain why he had withdrawn his entry blanks after agreeing to run in two separate races, according to J. Frank Facey, N. E. A. A. A. U. secretary.

Kelley withdrew from the eight-mile road run to the top of Mount Washington, N. H., next Saturday, and from a distance run at the Scotch games last Saturday.

Kelley said he cancelled his entry both times because he had been running a lot lately and did not feel he could do himself justice.

Harvard Youths Lose N. H. Doubles

Rye Beach, N. H., Aug. 10 (AP)—The Troy, N. Y., team of Paul Martin, former Indiana State champion, and Raymond Loucks, won the New Hampshire shore tennis doubles title, defeating David Burt, Old Lyme, Ct., and George Goodwin, Haverhill, Mass., 5—7, 1—6, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4, in the final at the Abenaqui Club.

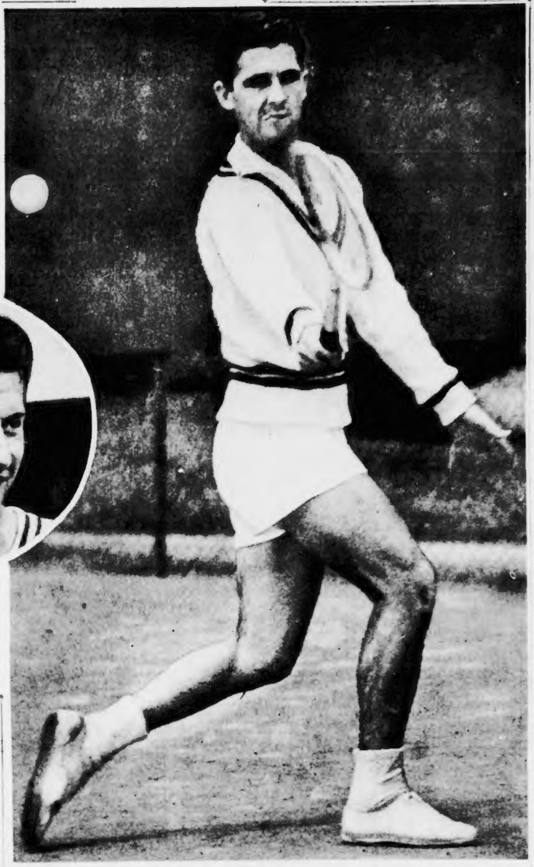
N. E. Stars Start Play in Hearst Net Finals

Guibord, Fuller Face Coast Duo



Paul Guibord of Melrose, former Dartmouth hockey captain, who steps into action today against the best in the mid-west and far west in the finals of the Hearst Grand National tennis tournament which is being staged at Los Angeles. Guibord will participate in both singles and doubles.

Hearst Net Finals Get Started

By MEL GALLAGHER

(Special to Boston Evening American)

Los Angeles, Aug. 10—Sectional tennis champions from New York, Chicago, San Antonio, Texas, and Los Angeles raise racquets today in the first annual Hearst Grand National championships at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

Two spicy matches are billed on inauguration day which pairs representatives of the Pacific Coast against talented title-holders from the middle west and east.

THE DRAW

Men's Singles—Carl Fischer, Detroit (Middle West) vs. Paul L. Guibord, Boston (East) and Ronald Lubin, Los Angeles, (West Coast) vs. Jesse Pfeiffer, San Antonio, Texas, (South).

Women's Singles — Helen Germaine, New York (East) vs. Mrs. Etta Coyle, Atlanta, Ga., (South) and Catherine Malcolm, Los Angeles (West Coast) vs. Margaret Stiel, Chicago (Middle West.

Men's Doubles—Worth Oswald and Gene Smith, Berkeley (West Coast) vs. Paul L. Guibord and Edward Fuller, Boston (East) and Milton Ruehl and Don Leavens, Milwaukee (Middle West) vs. Jesse Pfeiffer and Bertram Weltens, San Antonio, Texas (south).

Supplementing the three-event program will be an invitation mixed doubles meet with the following teams competing:

Catherine Malcolm, Los Angeles, and Worth Oswald, Berkeley (West Coast) vs. Mrs. Etta Coyne, Atlanta and Bertram Weitens, San Antonio (South); Helen Germaine, New York, and Edward Fuller, Boston (East) vs. Margaret Stiel, Chicago, and Milton Ruehl, Milwaukee (Middle West).

The tournament will be conducted upon a straight elimination basis, with opening round losers battling each other for third and fourth places in the meet.

Championships in men's singles, men's doubles and women's singles will be played Saturday.

In opposing Miss Stiel the Los Angeles champion, Catherine Malcolm, faces a player whose style is much like that of Miss Deacon of Vancouver, whom the local ace defeated for the West Coast sectional title last week.

BOSTON DUO STRONG

The Boston duo, Paul Guibord and Edward Fuller, should make a great hit with the gallery and are capable of upsetting even as powerful a team as Oswald and Smith.

Guibord captained the 1936 Dartmouth College tennis team and gained the sixth spot in the National Inter-collegiate ranking that year. He recently won the Massachusetts State singles and doubles championships.

Fuller, partner to Guibord, is co-captain of North Carolina University tennis team and ranks second in the New England singles. He is the holder of several major singles and doubles titles in Maine and Western Massachusetts.

The meet will resume tomorrow with singles matches between Ronald Lubin, Los Angeles, and Jesse Pfeiffer of San Antonio, and Helen Germaine of New York vs. Mrs. Etta Coyne of Atlanta.

Greyhound Record Attempt Steals Show at Goshen

By MURRAY GOODMAN

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service.

New York, Aug. 10 — There is no greyhound nor even a Rosalind in the 12th running of the $40,000 Hambletonian Stakes tomorrow. But one thing the experts are certain of—it's the most wide open race in the history of the trotting classic.

Today, the day before the Hambletonian running, the gray colt will attempt to break Peter Manning's world's of 1:56¾ for the mile, and that effort against the watch is attracting far more attention than the field of 12 which will battle it out for the rich Hambletonian.

DE SOTA FAVORITE

The Hambletonian, however, which is in trotting what the Kentucky Derby is to thoroughbred horse racing, will have its moment of glory—it always has.

The 12 three-year-olds which are slated to face the starter are all more or less evenly matched, and the batting should be considerably heavier than it has been in the last two years.

The colt has won impressively over other Hambletonian eligibles in more recent races and he may do it again, but there are 11 other owners and drivers with different ideas.

De Sota, incidentally, never raced as a two-year-old. If he wins the Hambletonian, he will be the first ever to do so without a juvenile competitive background.

The colt has done the mile in 2:02 1-5, which is not exactly snailing from a harness horseman's viewpoint.

WHITE WITH SCHNAPPS

Reynolds is the Winston-Salem, N. C., tobacco magnet, and he, having already experienced the thrill of winning the classic with Mary Reynolds in 1933, is most anxious to score again.

It is probable that Ben White, silver-haired veteran of the grand circuit, who drove Rosalind to victory last year and Mary Reynolds in 1933—the only driver, incidentally, to win twice—will be in the seat behind Schnapps. And White's driving eagerness may prove a big factor, especially with a colt as capable as Schnapps.

The future book favorite, Twilight Song, owned by William H. Strang, the Brooklyn sportsman, is the most highly-regarded of the filly entrants. Twilight Song, like Schnapps, is trained by Sage White.

E. Roland Harriman, who makes trotting his all-year around hobby, has in Farr, a bay daughter of Traux and Charm, what may be considered the most legitimate of the race's dark horses.

BOSTWICK ENTERED

In trotting races, the start is most important, and it is the opinion of experts, including White, that Farr, with a good start, might prove an exceptionally tough filly to beat.

Billy Dickerson will drive Farr, and the other drivers are sort of hoping that Farr don't get away too fast.

Dunbar Bostwick, of the Westbury, L. I., Bostwicks, and noted more for his ability with a polo mallet than his driving skill, is the only amateur or "gentleman jockey" in the race.

Bostwick, who has developed quite a craze for trotting horses, will pilot his own Hollywood Audrey II, a bay daughter of Hollywood Harkaway, and while his chances are not considered too good, one can never tell what a Bostwick will do.

Whatever happens, however, and whoever wins, it should be a great race as Hambletonians always have been.

Boxing Results

Holyoke—Mickey Maker, 143½, Jersey City, pounded out unanimous decision over Frankie Britt, 146, Fall River, ten rounds. Douglas Murchie, 141, North Adams and Young Lefty, 142, Fall River, drew, eight rounds.

Parker Would Turn Pro

Davis' Cup Team Member Awaits Lucrative Bid

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, sensational Los Angeles featherweight, will be shooting for his 14th knockout in 15 starts when he goes against Scranton's "Irish Eddie" Brink here tomorrow night . . . since the Ryder and Davis cup went west the British have conveniently developed a renewed interest in cricket . . . correction: Tennessee has 'em four deep for football this fall (not three) . . . and everyone down there says watch a kid named Bartholomew . . . his first name is unknown right now, but it won't be this fall . . . Charley Lacey, Lakeville golf pro, has bought himself four greyhounds . . . Oone of 'em set him back $600.

Elwood Rigby, Pittsburgh fight promoter, called to say he'll put on John Henry Lewis and Bob Pastor in Forbes Field, Sept. 27 . . . O. K. Butch . . . So far as the records show, Duke is the first university to supply three of four infielders for a major league ball club—Chubby Dean at first, Ace Parker at short and Bill Werber at third for the Athletics, all learned their baseball under "Colby Jack" Coombs down at Durham, N. C. . . . If Wayne Ambler, who went straight from Duke to the second base spot with the A's hadn't broken a jaw the Methodist school might have made it a full house.

Golf tip: Vic Ghezzi wouldn't take a word of advice from his caddy in a recent tournament and shot a pair of 68's . . . Mike Jacobs plans a winter fight show in Miami this year . . . Ray Fabriani, former concert musician and long wrestling czar in Philly, will take over the grunt and groan activities in the New York Hippodrome where the late Jack Curley held forth . . . Prof. William Harold Terry begins a series of lectures at Columbia University's baseball school this week . . . He'll be assisted by Drs. Carl Hubbell, Dick Bartell and Gus Mancuso . . . Looks as if Paul Waner of the Pirates is Joe Medwick's most dangerous rival for National League batting honors this year.

Lynn Myers, shortstop for the Asheville (N.C.) club, made himself a candidate for somebody's hall of fame by scoring seven runs in one game without being charged with an official time at bat . . . How did he do it? . . . Well, he walked five times and was hit by a pitcher on two other occasions . . . Word from Paris says the charming Suzanne Lenglen (you all remember her) is trim and active at 38 and still passionately interested in tennis . . . The Indians lost 11 out of 13 games on their last Eastern trip . . . Steve O'Neill was afraid to go home.

Joe DiMaggio has hit two homers in a game four times and three in another game . . . Mercer Beasley admits his boy, Frankie Parker, may turn pro if he gets a satisfactory offer . . . Mickey Walker has caused a new row in the farm camp by advising Tommy to go to the mountains for the last week of his training for Louis . . . Manager Ted Broadribb is for the idear! Farr is agin' it . . . Jim Weaver of the Pirates has won all his five starts this year . . . but he has been started only five times . . . why?

NEWTON Boy Sparkles ON CAPE

Buzzards Bay, Aug. 10—Hitting and fielding like a true baseball genius, Charlie "Dapper" Gallagher, formerly of Providence College and Our Lady's High of Newton, is one of the big reasons why Larry Donovan's Bourne nine is going so well in the Cape Cod League.

Charlie, a rangy horsehider who tips the scales at 175 pounds, is the talk of the Cranberry Circuit by reasons of his fine third base play and his consistent hitting.

In his team's 23 games to date, Charlie has battered out 50 hits for an average of .387. He has delivered 38 singles, seven doubles, three triples and a pair of round-trippers.

BEST SINCE ROLFE

Tom Whelan, chief umpire in the summer loop and head coach at Lynn English, claims that Gallagher is the best hot-corner guardian he has seen on the Cape since "Red" Rolfe of the New York Yankees played here in 1932.

Gallagher's great play has caught the eye of the Boston Bees and the Cleveland Indians.

Charlie was graduated from Our Lady's High in Newton in 1933 after playing four years on the baseball and basketball teams.

ONLY 22

Charlie entered Providence College the September following his graduation from high school. At the Rhode Island school he also starred in basketball and baseball.

Move on to Oust P. G. A. Prexy

Chicago, Aug. 10 (AP)—The Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, at odds with the national organization's policies for a year or more, has opened a campaign to oust President George R. Jacobus of Ridgewood, N. J.

The campaign to replace Jacobus, which has been brewing in the Chicago neighborhood since last year's annual convention here, was moved out into the open with the announcement that Alex Cunningham, president of the Illinois section, would head an opposition ticket next November.

Denies Lazzeri To Replace O'Neil

Cleveland, Aug. 10 (AP)—Cleveland's scalped Indians returned home with expectations of a shake-up within the tribe which was foreshadowed by silence.

Alva Bradley, president, just returned from a seashore vacation, briefly denied rumors that Tony Lazzeri, New York Yankee second baseman, would be signed to replace Steve O'Neil as the Indians' manager next season.

Mrs. Sarah Bates, a Worcester St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "I had been feeling bad for three months. I had lost my baby and I was nervous, tired and easily exhausted. I took the advice of my sister, Mrs. Phillips, who said Dr. Walsh had helped her so much that she was sure Dr. Walsh could help me. Dr. Walsh did help me wonderfully. I feel good now, thanks to Dr. Walsh, and I have taken my mother to him for treatment. I am giving this testimonial in the hope my experience will lead others who suffer from chronic disease to Dr. Walsh and a cure for their troubles. Signed: Sarah Bates."

Become Citizens!

THOUSANDS of Works Progress Administration workers in Boston and elsewhere throughout the nation are seeking certification of their citizenship.

Necessarily, hundreds of these men and women will be disappointed. For years they put off being naturalized. Now they must be classed as aliens.

Their disappointment should be a lesson—not only to themselves, but to the many thousands of others who live here as guests or visitors and not as partners in this, the greatest nation in the world.

The person who resides and works in the United States should consider becoming a citizen his MOST IMPORTANT DUTY—so important that the initial formalities cannot be delayed another week. He owes that to himself and his family.

With the growing tendency to restrict pensions, unemployment benefits and relief work TO CITIZENS, no man who considers America his home can afford to remain an alien.

A Tribute to a Friend

Twenty-one years with the State Department of Correction, 15 years as Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Bagley's never-failing purpose was TO SAVE YOUTH FROM CRIME.

It was his conviction that criminals were ordinarily led into wrong doing in their youth through bad environment, inadequate supervision at home and the absence of healthful recreation, especially at night.

There was no more enthusiastic sponsor of playground activities than he in all the country, nor a bitterer foe of the "street corner gang."

No one knows how many hundreds of boys and girls Edward Bagley turned from careers of crime into the paths of useful citizenship. We know only that every day he tried to help someone.

We Shall Nominate Him

Recently, he entered his attractive wife in a nationwide contest, the purpose of which was to select "America's Five Most Beautiful Women."

What is more, he even agrees to accompany her to the motion picture capital and, there, run the risk of unemployment.

Not all husbands can be so self-sacrificing. Too many are disposed to become jealous of the "Missus," whose success promises to eclipse theirs. The numerous divorces that have followed wives' winning fame and fortune on the stage, in literature and business are convincing proof.

So, if ever there's a contest to find "America's Five Most Unselfish Men," we are going to nominate Bradford Hutchinson. He's a winner.

"Your Money or Your Life"

POLICE reports of the holdup of a Brockton roadside stand by two masked men contain a too-familiar statement.

"The bandits," the reports state, "fled after firing a single shot to show they meant business if anybody disobeyed and followed them."

That sentence could be copyrighted and inserted into almost every account of an armed robbery. It is always "your money or your life."

Obviously, any man who will take a gun, point it at another man and threaten to kill him is a potential murderer. When caught he should be treated as such.

The trouble with us in Massachusetts is that we are altogether too lenient with gunmen. If we gave more of them the opportunity to cool their heels in State's prison for periods ranging from ten years to life, we and our property would enjoy greater security.

A Census of the Jobless

THE United States Senate's approval of a nationwide census of the unemployed interests New England, Massachusetts especially.

This legislation has been repeatedly advocated by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

It has been his contention that the Government could make no sensible approach to the relief problem until it knew definitely how many required assistance.

From time to time various departments in Washington issued figures. The American Federation of Labor gave out others. But, admittedly, all the statistics were guesses, lacking the assurance that only an official tabulation of the jobless in the 48 States could provide.

Now, apparently, the national administration is beginning to see merit in facts, and that is a hopeful sign. We have had too much guesswork.

Hopeful News for Boston

SENATOR WALSH'S telegram that the Boston Navy Yard will very probably build at least two of the destroyers authorized by Congress is welcome news.

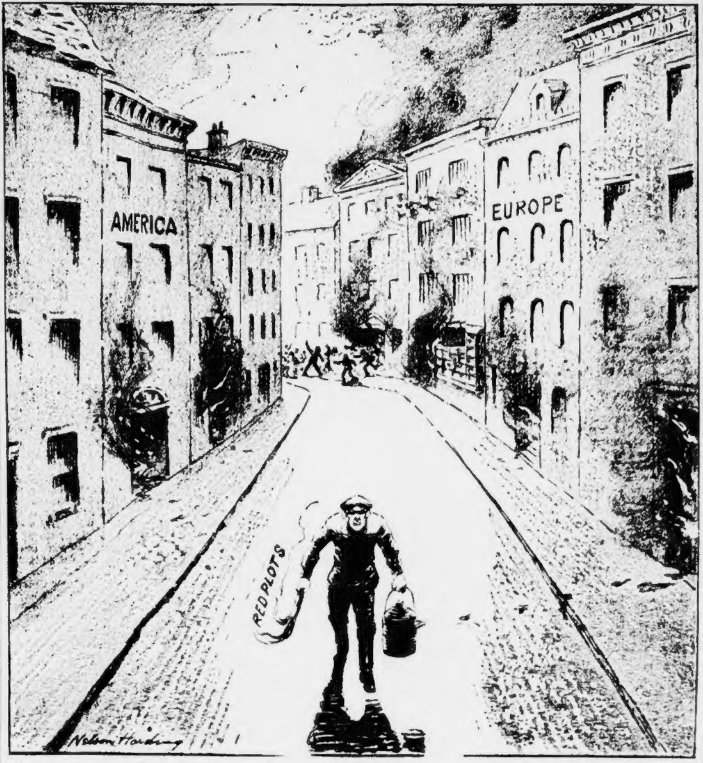
It is to be hoped that New England materials, so far as possible, will be used in the new destroyers.

Adequate military defense, both in peace and war, is the important thing about any shipbuilding program. Yet, of hardly less importance is the fact that the money spent arms many an individual in the fight against unemployment.

The International Firebug

By Nelson Harding



New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 10—I have a literary friend whose relaxing moments are spent in prowling around haunted houses late at night and from which he makes models. There is more material than one might imagine. Every town and city neighborhood has its haunted house.

O. O. McIntyre

Most of them run to fictional type—lop sided, decayed, with mournful cedars waving gaunt branches across the broken windows. Floors that creak and mumble.

And always a grown up garden and an abandoned cistern where someone reputedly fell in one stormy night.

People in a spirit of bravado often rent houses supposed to be haunted. But the records show they invariably leave within a very short time. They will admit they have never seen a ghost but they do hear strange noises.

The fact is every house has strange noises.

The newest type of Dangerous Lady in the snack bars is the pseudo athletic girl. The half world has thumbs downed on old artifices, realizing they only serve as hands off warnings. That is the rouge pot, the exotic perfume, bright red nails, heavily kohled eyes and the bizarre frock.

So the something new in gay deceivers appear as though they had just returned from the golf course, with golf bags, etc., or the tennis court, with racket in case.

All this to stress their innocence—but they employ the same old devices.

It was a very swell reception Ted Lewis received upon his return to Broadway after a lapse of many years—much longer than the usual piff-awmer stays away from the street.

For Ted with his battered hat and clarinet began on Broadway in the remembered days of Rector's and doubtless overstayed his welcome because he was beginning to be bracketed among has-beens.

Sensibly, he pulled up stakes and found a hearty reception trouping across the outland. He became an especial favorite in Chicago where he has been for several years.

One wonders just what was Ted Lewis' reaction to the claptrap Broadway in contrast to the one he knew so well. There are restaurants in New York today that far excel Rector's, where Ted started, in cuisine but none has recaptured its glamour.

Too, George Rector had a way of making people of importance feel the place was opened solely for them. And of looking through people who didn't matter and jockeying them behind the palms next to the drummer.

Rector's was snooty and there was and still is a vast public that feels flattered when welcomed in the snooty spots.

Most families of wealth who hire French chefs—paid in instances as high as $12,000 a year—have to employ especial pastry cooks. The French know scarcely anything about desserts. Their list is confined to a souffle, a raw peach on a pad of cotton or sliced fruit.

Employment agencies say there has arisen a vogue for German cooking the past year and those of that nationality especially skilled find no trouble getting crack jobs.

Our grocery delivery boy is a blend of Burgess Meredith and Buddy Ebsen plus a tousle of red hair and plentious freckles. He comes in whistling or boo-boo-booing in the manner of Bing Crosby.

"Every guy I know," he said today, "is soured on the world. That's a lot of peach fuzz. I got my youth, health and a swell girl. We have teamed up in a dancing act and are playing the amateur nights to break in.

"But someday you'll see us at Loew's State. So with youth, health, a swell girl and a career can you blame a fellow for being bubbly?"

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Lucky fellow, that Bill Smith! No wonder he lands all the fat jobs. That disposition of his is worth a million dollars."

Elsie Robinson

"Ethel White? Isn't she marvelous! You couldn't call her pretty and she can't afford smart clothes — but she has such a heavenly disposition everyone adores her."

How often you've said something like that yourself, as you enviously watched some popular favorite. Disposition, no doubt about it, is the greatest asset a human can have. Or the worst liability.

It's your answer to the world around you.

We weren't born with our dispositions. We make them . . . accumulate them . . . Have them hung upon us.

PARENTS TO BLAME

From the instant a child is born he begins to watch, listen, and react. If the things he sees and hears are happy things—kindly, safe things—his impressions and reactions are happy. If, on the other side, he is surrounded by bickering and violence, uncertainty and dishonesty, he reflects that confusion in his own unformed mind—becomes frightened, violent and uncertain himself.

DISPOSITIONS BEGIN WITH OUR FIRST CONSCIOUSNESS AND USUALLY ARE "SET FOR KEEPS" BY THE TIME WE'RE SIX.

During that brief time our outlook on life, for better or worse, is largely determined. During that time we are prepared to be cheerful, courageous, sympathetic good fellows—or timid, gloomy, unsociable dreamers. A mighty serious job? Yes. And who's responsible for it? Our parents.

In nearly every case, the parent fixed the disposition which will either make or break the child during those first, plastic years.

VITAL QUESTIONS

That's a harsh statement—but true. Frederick K. Stamm nails it home in the July issue of "Good Housekeeping." In an article entitled "Disposition," he advises parents to ask themselves some extremely pointed questions. Here are some of them:

"How often have I been irritated at the office or factory, or in the kitchen, and taken it out on my children?

"When I refuse my children some request or pleasure, is the refusal based upon my interest in their good, or is it due to my own personal whim?

"How many times have I said, 'Don't bother me', or 'Get out of the way', or 'I'm busy', when I really wasn't seriously occupied, but lazy or uninterested in my children's problems?

"How frequently have I demanded good conduct and respect and thankfulness when my own attitude was such as not to inspire these virtues in my children?

"Do I keep my word to my children? Haven't I promised to take them somewhere at an appointed time, only to allow some trivial matter to interfere or some friend or neighbor to take my time?

"Do I keep up mentally with my children? Can I answer their many questions on religion and the other things about which they want to know? Do I belong to their world or have their interests long passed me by?"

How's a bad disposition made? That's how. Twenty years from now your youngster may be in a bad jam. Will you remember the lie you told over the telephone, the promise you broke, the surly answer you gave him TODAY?

Historic Anniversaries

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

On the shores of a deep, pine-circled lake in northern Minnesota, they are preparing to celebrate with stirring and colorful pageant the birth of Old Man River—the mighty Mississippi.

Edwin C. Hill

Real Chippewa Indians will take part in it. And sombre Jesuit missionaries (or actors made up as such), and explorers and hunters and traders and French voyageurs. For the story of Old Man River goes back to the beginning of the white man on this continent.

First, the solitary trappers—the fur hunters; then, the pioneers, plodding ahead with their Red River ox-carts, and, scene by scene the whole vivid drama of the birth and rise of the Father of Waters. It will be held in Itasca Park, among the tall pines, for there is where the Mississippi begins, in a brook flowing from Lake Itasca.

There is a pretty legend that a beautiful Chippewa maiden, Itasca, loved the great hunter, White Deer. But the maiden was stolen and carried away by Chebiabo, ruler of the underworld, and his crew of evil spirits, and it was the tears of Itasca's people, joined with her own tears, welling up in fountains from the underworld that flooded the valley and formed Lake Itasca, from which the Mississippi flows.

AN HISTORIC LAND

Fifty square miles of the Lake Itasca basin is now a public park and game preserve—a grand region marked by magnificent pine trees and filled with friendly deer, elk and beaver. Probably 100,000 visitors will take in the celebration of the origin of the Mississippi, as well they might. For where in America is there anything of land or water that has played such a part in the growth of the nation?

It stirs the imagination to gaze backward for three centuries over the pageant of the great river—its immensity and power rolling down to the Gulf; the red tribes that dwelt along its banks and worshipped it. The coming of the white man—Spanish, French, English. Birchbark canoes slipping down the current in the dusk. The lordly steamboats of a later day, the Natchez and the Robert E. Lee.

* * *

Forty-one years ago this month one of the thrilling epics of American history surged across the tumultuous stage of life. The first gold claim was staked out in the Klondike. Word sped far and wide that wealth was to be had in the Yukon—scooped up from the earth like gravel. Gold fever spread across the country.

Young men and old men, women of all degrees, ladies, perfect ladies, and ladies, by gad! Clerks from the shops, mechanics from the factories, gamblers, courtesans, crooks and honest men, plunged headlong into the greatest rush since the days of '49.

EVERYBODY WENT

Thousands, with not the slightest knowledge of gold mining, or the least conception of the hardships ahead, swarmed to Seattle and San Francisco, took steamer to Dawson and footed it to the steep trail over Chilkoot Pass.

Do you remember one of Charlie Chaplin's best pictures in the days of the old silent films? There was the picture. An interminable, endless procession staggering up the Chilkoot, falling by the wayside, to pick themselves up again and stagger on.

Rex Beach, the novelist, was in that rush, and so was Wilson Mizner, of the San Francisco Mizners, wit and man-about-town, and often I have heard them tell the tale. Those were the days of Soapy Smith and a dozen other prize rascals, who finished their gold hunt dangling in the loops of the Vigilantes' ropes.

When the weary adventurers staggered into Dawson, they found that flour was a dollar a pound. A cup of coffee, with condensed milk, cost fifty cents. Baked beans were a dollar an order; bacon and eggs, two and a half dollars a plate.

Many of the pilgrims folded up right there, took jobs, if they could get them, at hard labor—anything to live—until they could get funds for a return to the States.

SOME DID WELL

But hundreds of others — and there were women among them—took the trail to the gold claims, and went to work with pick and shovel. A few struck it rich. Some did well. But most were defeated by hard luck, the climate or their own weaknesses. The rush and the hectic life lasted until 1901, when the population of the Yukon District was nearly 30,000.

Tex Rickard, later to win fame as the promoter of million-dollar prize fights, ran a gambling house in Dawson in the flush times. But as the rich claims of the Klondike petered out, the population fell off until, by 1921, there were barely 4000 sourdoughs in the district.

So began and ended a great American adventure.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Donald Horst, two and a half years old, the so-called "kidnaped" child of Chicago, insists in choosing his parents.

While Donald was being sheltered in an orphanage, crying for his "Mommy," his real mother assented to his adoption by Mrs. Horst, who had reared him from the date of his birth.

Is there any binding blood-bond between parents and children or is "parental affection" a mere matter of everyday familiarity?

The latter would seem to be the case, for a child adopted by a couple when it is a month old will grow up with MORE affection for its adopted parents than it will ever have for its real parents, if discovered in later years.

Professor Charles A. Beard, an historian with left wing leanings, arises long enough from his summer literary labors to announce in the current issue of a magazine that the United States has "plans for landing a 4,000,000 army somewhere off the American continent. On the whole, President Roosevelt has made no commitments. But his sympathies are so well known as to need no documentation."

This should be filed away with Ambassador Dodd's recent Hist! Listen! letter that an American multi-millionaire stood ready to finance a Fascist revolution in the United States.

Is Professor Beard's army of 4,000,000 Johnny-jump-ups the second installment of Ambassador Dodd's fee-fie-fo-fum yarn?

And how come that Professor Beard knows so much about President Roosevelt's "sympathies" and "commitments?"

Barcelona is about to set up a "special tribunal" to try "spies." These "spies" are those radicals and critics of the Anarcho-Communist government in Barcelona who are exercising their mythical "civil liberties."

It does not take long for the overseas children of Stalin's Red Russia to learn the frightful game of "PURGE."

Norman Thomas—our somewhat innocent-minded Socialist leader in America—announces in an interview that he is horrified that "Spain should now emulate Russia in precisely that denial of civil liberties which has brought the gravest reproach on the constructive achievements of the Soviet Government."

Dr. Thomas should brush up on history. He will find that any form of government—even the Socialism that he advocates—that substitutes the power of the state for the WILL OF INDIVIDUALS cannot function without forcibly destroying all opposition.

Several seasons ago there was a breath-taking play produced on Broadway called "Kind Lady." A good-hearted elderly woman, living alone, with more of the milk of human kindness than judgment in her make-up, lets a "begging artist" into the house. He's a gangster, and what happens to Kind Lady is plenty.

In the matter of the Basque refugee children, Old Mother England was Kind Lady. Out of the goodness of her heart she started to mother some young ones of both sexes from Bilbao.

Riots, beatings and insulting the nuns who have charge of some of these children are only a few of the problems that the English government is now up against. The latest cable says that Basque girls and English girls in Manchester had a regular Battle of the Boyne.

Moral for nations as well as individuals: DON'T OPEN YOUR DOOR TO EVERYONE WHO KNOCKS.

Edward Lee Harris, Negro janitor at the University of Pittsburgh for six years, throws down his broom and duster and becomes a professor at Wilberforce University in Ohio. He has degrees in both philosophy and chemistry.

Here are the handicaps that Harris had to overcome: His color, a FULL-TIME job as a janitor, a wife and two children and only four and a half hours' sleep a day.

Once again here is something for the "no-longer-any-opportunity" yawpers to paste in their hats.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Federal agents in New York City arrested a man who is reported to have collected $1000 from George Palmer Putnam—husband of Amelia Earhart—after telling a fantastic story about finding the missing aviatrix on a small island in the Pacific.

The alleged extortionist is said to have used a scarf lost by Miss Earhart several years ago at Roosevelt Field to substantiate his claim that he had information of her whereabouts.

A more despicable crime cannot be imagined than extorting money from the husband of the missing flyer by selling him a fake story about her. Any decent man who knew anything about what happened to her would never think about selling his information to her husband.

Senator Townsend of Delaware, in demanding an investigation of the Administration's silver purchase program, says scandalous charges "too serious and too well supported by documentary evidence to be laughed off" have been made.

There can't be anything connected with this program that is worse than the profiteering in which the government has engaged at the expense of silver producers. The Treasury pays 77½ cents an ounce for newly mined silver and then carries that silver on its books at $1.29, beating the miner out of 51½ cents on every ounce.

If a corporation wrote up the value of its stock the way the Treasury balloons the value of the silver it buys, the officers of that corporation would be haled into court so quick it would make their heads swim.

What is sauce for the goose is NOT sauce for the gander when government is playing the role of goose and private business is the gander.

Plans have been made by a Congressional committee to plug up loopholes in the tax laws so fewer tax dollars can escape. Nothing of any consequence has been done yet to stop the leaks of extravagance and waste in government expenditures.
